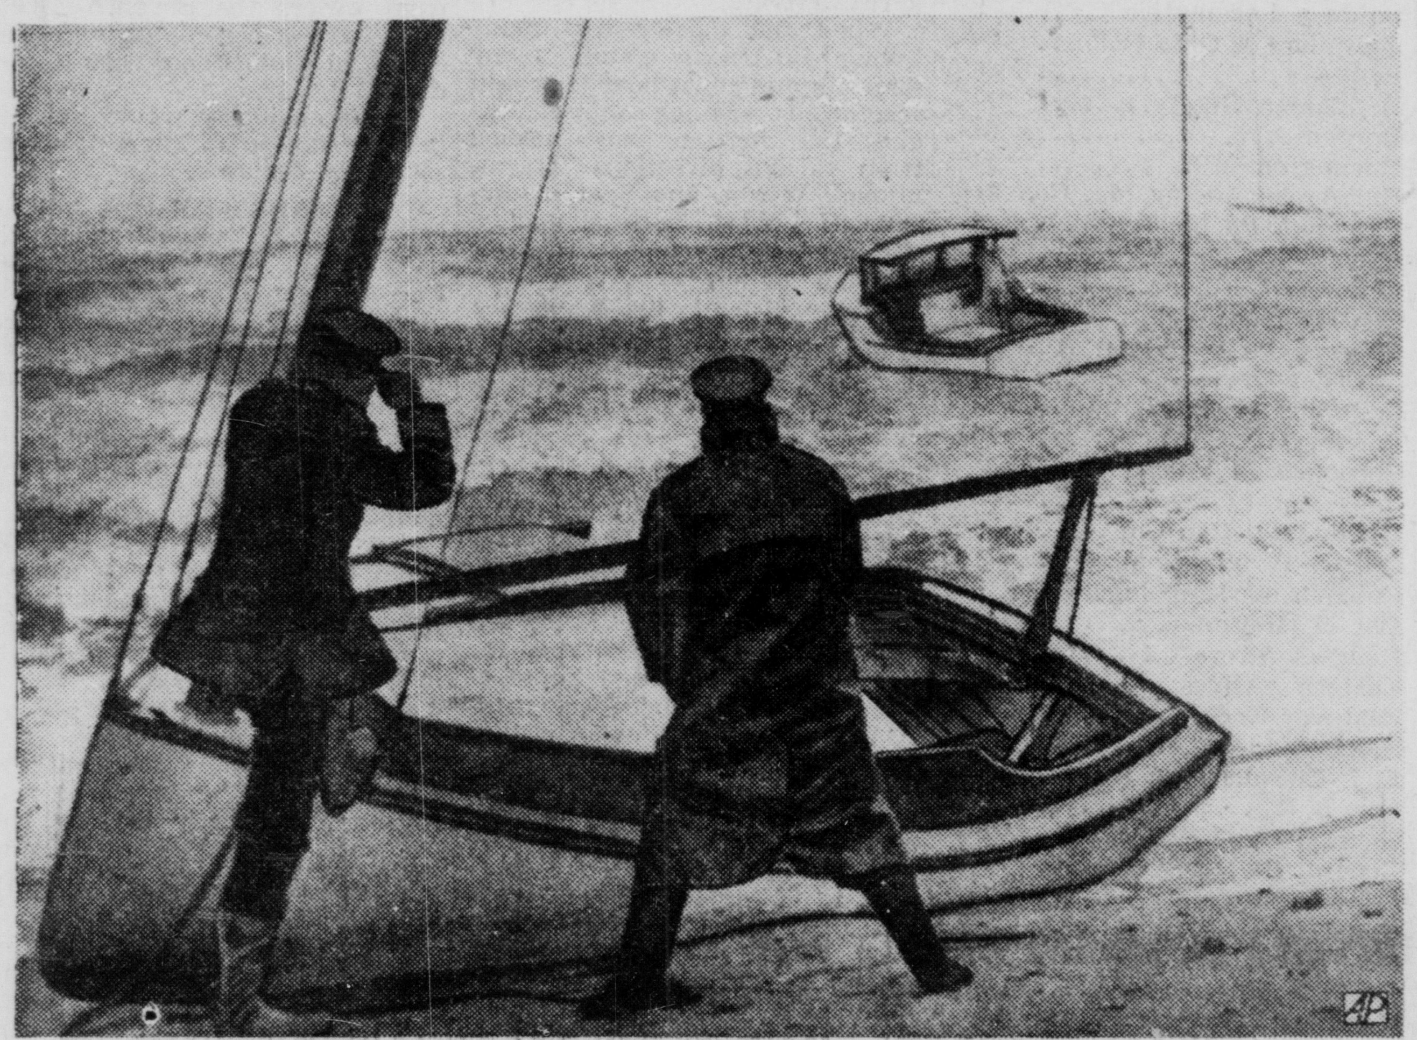
Dulles Says Military Will Thwart Chinese

RESCUE OPERATIONS UNDERWAY — Mrs. Fred Brockway, of Albion, Me., right, holds her seven months old baby, Guy, as she and her family of 10 sit atop roof of car awaiting rescue at Unity, Me. (early Sunday), when they became mired as a stream overflowed its banks at height of Hurricane Edna that swept through the state. During the seven-hour rescue operation, two lives were lost, one of the rescuers and one of the Brockway children. Picture was made by Joe Sline of the Augusta, Me., Kennebec-Journal. (AP Wirephoto)



BATTLES TO SAVE CRAFT—Policemen on emergency duty stand by, foreground, for possible aid while John Bigelow, 22, battles to save his small cruiser off Monument Beach, Mass., as Hurricane Edna lashed Buzzards Bay (late Sat., Sept. 11). Cruiser dragged anchor almost into pounding surf when Bigelow swam out, started engine, and moved craft offshore. Officers are standing by a Cape Cod catboat beached earlier. (AP Wirephoto)

Jagged Wrecks Mark Path of Hurricane

Portland, Maine, Sept. 13 (AP)—Washed-out highways, railroad tracks and crops lay like a jagged wound today across territory raked by death-dealing Hurricane Edna from Massachusetts to Nova Scotia.

The cost of lives mounted to 19—13 of them in New England and eight in Maine alone, where autos were trapped in road and bridge washouts by streams that went wild under a record eight inches rain.

Maine Gov. Burton M. Cross after an air survey set loss there at more than seven million dollars—on top of 10 million wrought 12 days before by Hurricane Carol. Cross asked President Eisenhower to declare Maine a major disaster area.

Two-thirds of Nova Scotia's four million dollar apple crop was counted lost.

ALL OF MAINE'S DEAD were drowning victims. Four persons perished in Massachusetts, one in Connecticut, another in Nova Scotia. Six highway fatalities in New York state were attributed to the hurricane.

Southern New England, braced for devastation reminiscent of the 1938 hurricane, was spared heavy property damage and even in the areas hardest hit water, not wind was blamed for much of the destruction.

Telephone lines went out of service on a scale that once again saw repair crews head from southern New England into Maine, where their task was complicated by road washouts that caused a temporary ban on travel to all but emergency vehicles.

Late last night state police said the main routes again were open.

Typhoon Kills Nine in Japan

Tokyo, Sept. 13 (AP)—Violent typhoon June cut a 300-mile wide path of death and destruction across the southern Japanese mainland today.

At least nine persons were dead, eight missing and 5,366 homeless, Kyodo News Service reported.

The howling storm slammed into teeming Kyushu island with winds of up to 110 miles an hour. Winds slackened to 90 miles an hour as the typhoon roared inland.

THREE SOUTHERN Kyushu cities, lashed by an 88-mile-an-hour wind, tidal waves and cloudburst rains, were evacuated. They are Miyazaki, with 120,000 residents; Miyakonojo, 75,000; and Nobeoka 88,000

The newspaper Yomiuri said a flash flood may have virtually wiped out Miyakonojo. The storm paralyzed communications in the area.

The U. S. Air Force said the storm center, lumbering northeastward at 17 miles an hour, would move across western Honshu and into the Sea of Japan tomorrow.

Its present course would carry the storm through Hiroshima, but it would miss the populous centers of Osaka and Tokyo.

WEATHER EXPERTS described the storm as even more powerful than the 1934 typhoon Muroto, worst in Japan's history. Muroto killed more than 2,000 people and demolished 40,000 homes.

Some 15,000 Japanese in the path of typhoon June left their homes for higher ground to escape raging waves churned up by the storm. All planes on Kyushu were grounded. Schools were closed.

The typhoon was expected to smash across Kyushu and hit the southern tip of the main island of Honshu before roari out to sea — but the weather bureau said the storm may veer toward the Tokyo area.

However, the U. S. Air Force, which has tracked the storm for several days, said its peak winds possibly would slow to 70 to 75 miles an hour within 30 to 36 hours.

Florence Dies On Mexican Peaks

New Orleans, Sept. 13 (AP)—Hurrican Florence, sixth tropical storm spawned this year, blew itself out yesterday after smashing into a rugged mountainous area on the coast of Mexico.

The weather bureau here said squalls were in store for the Tuxpan area, but winds accompanying the storm had diminished to 35 miles per hour.

Oneonta Has 32 Degrees

Albany, Sept. 13 (AP) — The mercury dipped to 32 degrees—freezing—in Oneonta early today and the weatherman said it probably sank as low in some mountain areas upstate.

Some New Yorkers found it more comfortable driving to work with their auto heaters turned on, as temperatures hovered in the 30s generally in eastern and northern counties. Readings were higher in central and western sections, with Buffalo's 51 the highest of the early mornings lows.

New York city's low was 54.

SUNSHINE WAS bright in the Hudson valley area, but most other sections of the state were cloudy. Some scattered showers were reported in the Syracuse and Buffalo areas.

The U. S. weather bureau said the mercury was expected to reach the upper 60s and low 70s today and fall to the upper 40s and 50s during the night.

Low readings today included: Elmira, 35; Glens Falls, 36; Massena, Albany and Poughkeepsie, 37; Rome and Utica, 39; Binghamton, 40; Syracuse, 43 and Rochester 47.

Quemoy Is Visited

Taipeh, Formosa, Sept. 13 (AP)—Nationalist China's Vice President Chen Cheng and Defense Minister Gen. Yu Ta-wei today visited Quemoy, strategic Nationalist outpost island which is almost within the shadow of the Red Chinese mainland. The Harvard-educated defense minister arrived only yesterday from Washington to assume his post. The visit to Quemoy came as Nationalist ships and planes continued their daily bombardment of Red positions on neighboring Amoy and on Communist military craft off the Fukien province coast.

Socialists Win Vital Balloting

Adenauer Group May Get Trouble

Kiel, Germany, Sept. 13—A political riptide menaced Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and his pro-American foreign policy today as his Socialist foes emerged as the strongest party in a key state election.

Although the coalition headed by Adenauer's Christian Democratic Union (CDU) appeared sure of holding control of the government in the British zone frontier state of Schleswig-Holstein, bordering on the Russian zone, the Socialists' 12,000-vote lead in yesterday's balloting was seen as a clearcut exposure of the old leader's suddenly dwindling popularity.

The rural state—called the "poor house of the Bonn Republic"—rebuffed the 78-year-old Chancellor's plea for a vote of confidence in electing its new Landtag (state parliament).

CAMPAIGNING FOR overtures to Russia to unify East and West Germany, the Socialists outscored the Christian Democrats in the same state that accorded the CDU a 2-1 margin over its arch rival last year when Adenauer was reelected chancellor.

In today's final count, the CDU trailed the Socialists 384,870 to 396,067.

The CDU's vote was cut almost in half from its 1953 peak of 637,570 in Schleswig-Holstein. The Socialists picked up 38,269 votes over last year's total of 357,798.

Adenauer fought to save his international prestige with a speech in this state Friday in which he described NATO membership and unconditional German sovereignty as his new goals.

But as he talked with British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden in Bonn yesterday on finding some way of rearming West Germany despite the French scuttling of the European Defense Community (EDC), the voters of this state showed their mounting discontent.

THE SOCIALISTS elected 20 Landtag candidates to the CDU's 19 in direct contests. But a complicated system allotting 40 per cent of the parliament's 69 seats on a proportional basis gave the rival parties a final total of 25 seats each.

The Refugee party won 10 seats, the Free Democrats 5, and the remaining 4 went to the SHB bloc formed by the German Party and the Schleswig-Holstein community.

CDU Minister President Friedrich Wilhelm Luebke, whose forces have run the state since 1950 in partnership with the Refugee Party, said today he would also invite the Free Democrats to join in a new government under his command. The Free Democrats already are Adenaur's partners in the National Coalition government.

LUEBKE BLAMED the CDU's loss of strength on the French National Assembly's rejection two weeks ago of the European army treaty, which Adenauer had promised would restore West Germany's sovereignty and rearm it as a partner in western defense.

With both the Refugee party and the Free Democrats in its coalition, the CDU would muster 40 of the 69 seats, compared to the Socialists' 25.

Adenauer's four-party national coalition includes the Refugee party, the Free Democrats and the German party. The national coalition is seriously strained by the CDU's reverse here. The Free Democrats want Adenauer to relinquish the foreign ministry job he holds in addition to his chancellorship and let someone else take the job.

The CDU is split in its own ranks at Bonn over Adenauer's current bid for NATO membership. Like the Socialists, some CDU members of Parliament are now saying the chances for German reunification must not be endangered by any contribution to western defense that would antagonize Russia.

Political observers predict the national coalition will collapse if the Socialist trend continues strong in state elections in Bavaria, Hesse and lower Saxony later this year.

Automatic Promotions Frowned Upon by State

Automatic promotion of pupils from grade to grade is not approved by the State Department of Education, according to a letter received recently by Superintendent of Schools Arthur J. Laidlaw.

Associate Commissioner Frederick J. Moffitt points out in his communication that some schools in the state have "experimented with a policy of automatic promotion from grade to grade" but that the State Department of Education disapproved of such policy and had never "recommended it as a sound practice."

"The Department does believe that it is important to have each child experience continuous progress insofar as possible. Continuous progress means that each child, whether promoted or not promoted, is placed in that teaching-learning situation where he will receive the kind of instruction which will enable him to progress to the best of his ability. Such a plan of instruction should extend not only through the elementary grades, but through the secondary schools as well in order that the pupil's progress in the essential subjects

Beach Is Closed For Season

The Kingston Point beach, which was opened August 5, has been closed for the season, it was announced today by Mayor Frederick H. Stang.

An estimated 31,655 people used the bathing facilities this summer.

Expressing his appreciation to the public for its consideration and care in using the facilities, Mayor Stang said it was planned to make the beach "bigger and better" next season.

On the program are bathhouses for men and women and a second float, the mayor said. Parking facilities also will be improved and enlarged.

Fire Rates Lowered in Rural Zone

Lower Cost Areas Now Set at 3 Miles

A movement which started in Ulster county about two years ago to have the Class C insurance rate effective over a radius of three road miles from a firehouse in the rural areas instead of the old two mile radius, has resulted in a fire insurance rate reduction which will affect many of the districts throughout the state.

Not only is the area extended from two to three miles from many fire houses but there is also a reduction in rate announced by the New York State Superintendent of Insurance, Alfred J. Ohlinger. The new rate becomes effective today.

Area home, apartment and camp building owners will find the cost of maintaining their properties reduced as a result of substantially lower rates for fire insurance in a great many instances. This reduction does not affect all fire districts in the state, since certain fire districts have not met the minimum standards but the majority of fire districts will come under Class 3 rather than Class 2 getting the benefit of the three mile radius ruling.

THE MOVEMENT WAS started about two years ago when Assemblyman Kenneth C. Wilson, then supervisor of the town of Woodstock, approached

Ellenville Man Dies In Auto Collision

Abraham Miller, about 80, of 6 Liberty stret, Ellenville, was instantly killed at 6:45 o'clock this morning when the car he was operating and a tractor-trailer were in collision at the junction of Main and Center streets in the village.

Miller was proceeding west over Center street and a 1950 White tractor-trailer operated by David Hahan, Jr., of Hanover, Pa., owned by Raymond S. Border of Hanover, Pa., was proceeding north on Main street.

HAHAN TOLD investigating officers he saw the Miller car approaching and swerved to his left in an effort to avoid the collision. The Miller car struck the right fender of the tractor and both vehicles went to the right and over the curb on the west side of Main street near the Shamrock Bar and Grill, striking a parking meter and coming to a stop.

Miller was removed from his car and an ambulance was summoned but Dr. Charles Rosenstock, coroner, pronounced Miller dead. A verdict of accidental death was issued.

THE ACCIDENT was investigated by Chief Frank Groppe and Officer Charles Stedner of the Ellenville police department.

At the time of the accident the traffic light at the corner was still on "blinker," according to the police and was flashing yellow for north and south bound traffic and red for east-west traffic. No arrest was made and the accident is still under investigation by Ellenville police who notified District Attorney Howard C. St. John.

Death was due to a fractured skull and severe brain injury, police reported.

Three sons, Benjamin Miller of Ellenville, operator of the pharmacy, and Jack and Manny, proprietors of an electrical store in Ellenville, and four daughters survive.

Light Vote Is Seen in Primary

McCarthy Issue In Congress Bid

Albany, Sept. 13 (AP) — Voters will choose between a warm admirer and a strong supporter of Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R.-Wis.) in one of the 11 contests for congressional nominations in the New York state primary elections tomorrow.

Battles over 11 State Senate and 43 Assembly nominations also will be up for decision. Besides these and numerous contests for local offices, there are two fights between rival slates for election as delegates to the Democratic state convention.

The polls will be open in New York city from 3 p. m. to 10 p. m. Elsewhere in the state, voting hours will be from 12 noon to 10 p. m.

A light turnout is expected.

TWO LAWYERS, Republicans William P. Shea and Rep. Stuyvesant Wainwright, have fought out their campaigns for the first congressional district nomination primarily over the McCarthy issue.

Shea, who has advocated U. S. withdrawal from the United Nations, is a warm admirer of McCarthy. Stuyvesant has GOP organization support.

The district comprises Suffolk county, and part of Nassau county on Long Island.

There are actually only two Republican contests for congressional nominations, although a third is listed on the ballot.

In the 37th congressional district—Steuben, Chemung, Tioga and Broome counties—Rep. W. Sterling Cole is a shoo-in for renomination.

COLE, CHAIRMAN of the joint congressional committee on atomic energy, was due for some competition from Assemblyman John D. Young, whose name appears on the ballot. But Young withdrew his challenge recently and announced his support for Cole.

In the 26th District, West-

Both Races Attend

Washington, Sept. 13 (AP)—White and Negro students quietly went to class together in Washington today. School officials said there would be some classes with members of both races in virtually every school in the District of Columbia, which heretofore has segregated white and Negro pupils. Teaching staffs also were of both races in many schools for today's opening of the new term.

Woodland Valley Summer Home Is Destroyed by Fire

On Sunday about 5 p. m. fire was discovered under the porch of the summer residence of Miss Eunice Worth at Woodland Valley, located in the Roxmore Colony. Miss Worth attempted to summon aid by phone but found the telephone wire already out.

Help was summoned by neighbors but the fire had gained such headway that it was impossible to save anything from the house. Miss Worth was preparing to close the home for the season and had her personal belongings packed away. She was able to carry off a pocketbook.

FIRE EQUIPMENT from Phoenicia and Shandaken responded but was unable to save the building although by good work the adjoining houses were saved. There are about 20 houses in the colony, four of which are in the immediate vicinity of the burned house.

Firemen and neighbors stood by until about 2 a. m. today protecting adjoining properties. The cause of the blaze is unknown.

'Local Option Bingo' May Be GOP Plank

Albany, Sept. 13 (AP)—The prospect of legalizing bingo in New York state, long frowned upon by the Dewey administration, may become a Republican campaign plank this fall.

The change in the GOP view toward bingo was signaled Saturday night in Schenectady, where U. S. Sen. Irving M. Ives, almost certain to be the party nominee for governor, said he favored legalization of the game on a local option basis.

BINGO, IVES TOLD newsmen, was a "perfectly innocent game." He said he would seek to have legalization of the game included as a plank in his party's 1954 state platform.

The Senator's switch of GOP state policy drew quick support from another Republican leader, Assemblyman Speaker Oswald D. Heck. Heck said on a television program in New York city yesterday that he, too, favored a plan that would allow communities to decide whether they wanted to make bingo a lawful game.

And in Buffalo, after a speech boosting Ives as the only candidate for governor "who knows anything" about the job, Gov. Dewey took a kindly view of the bingo proposal.

Dewey, a long-time foe of any form of legalized gambling, said: "It might be a good idea to let the people pass upon it."

THE MOVE BY IVES obviously was intended to take the initiative away from the Democrats, whose leaders announced a few days earlier that they would seek legalization of bingo for charity purposes.

Ives said that any legalization of bingo should contain safeguards against profit-making by gamblers and promoters. He said such legislation should be regulated by the state so as to guarantee that all proceeds go to charitable, religious or fraternal groups licensed by the state to conduct games.

"We might just as well recognize," Ives continued, "that bingo, properly conducted, is a perfectly legitimate game. It is no different from raffles frequently conducted everywhere in the state."

Among other political developments over the weekend, Atty. Gen. Nathaniel L. Goldstein announced he would not seek reelection this fall, and the New

Wagner, in Poll, Edges Harriman and Roosevelt

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—The State Democratic party has announced that New York Mayor Robert F. Wagner edged out both Averell Harriman and Rep. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., in a statewide poll sampling voter preference on a party nominee for governor.

Wagner, however, has declared himself not in the race, and along with other New York city party leaders has said he will back Harriman for the nomination.

Harriman and Roosevelt, the two leading contenders for the top spot on the Democratic slate, ran neck-and-neck in the mail poll for which the party said it sent out 125,000 ballots and got back 16,080.

The statewide results, announced by the state party chairman Richard H. Balch yesterday, gave 23.2 per cent to Roosevelt and 23 per cent to Harriman. In New York city, where the party's main strength lies, Harriman got 25 per cent and Roosevelt 24.5 per cent.

Wagner was favored by 25.7 per cent of those polled throughout the state, Balch said, and by 25.1 per cent of the New York ballots.

In fourth place was former

Goal Is Set At Blasting Reds in U.S.

Hoover, Brownell Say Drive Started

Denver, Sept. 13 (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles—fresh from global strategy conferences with President Eisenhower and the National Security Council—says American military might will thwart any Chinese Communist assault against Nationalist Formosa.

And FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover and Attorney General Brownell say that so far as the Red threat on the home front is concerned, the administration's goal is to "utterly destroy the Communist party" in the United States.

THEY REPORTED a new drive toward that objective is well under way and that some Communists—spurred on by a new law granting immunity from prosecution—have been going to the FBI to tell about the activities of fellow conspirators.

Dulles, Hoover and Brownell made those statements at news conferences at the Summer White House yesterday after conferring with the President.

Then Eisenhower, Dulles, Vice President Nixon and other members of the National Security Council met for three hours in extraordinary session for top secret discussion of the Communist menace abroad—particularly in the Far East.

DULLES HINTED in advance of that meeting that the council might reach a decision as to precise U. S. policy on the question of whether American defense of the Nationalist island of Quemoy is esential to effective defense of Formosa.

Dulles told newsmen that "in the first instance" that is a question for America's military chiefs to decide. He aded that Eisenhower and the other non-military members of the Security Council would study the advice of the armed forces leaders, but would not necessarily follow it.

Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, is the military member of the council and he was on hand for yesterday's meeting — the first ever held outside of Washington.

BUT WHAT HE recommended with respect to Quemoy—and what the council decided—remained a deep secret when the members headed back to Washington by plane last night.

The U. S. Seventh Fleet is under long-standing orders to protect Formosa, the island bastion of the Chinese Nationalists,

Pilgrimage Made To Lady Shrine

Between 700 and 1,000 New Yorkers made the pilgrimage from New York to the Shrine of Our Lady of the Hudson on the grounds of the Church of the Presentation at Port Ewen Sunday afternoon, arriving aboard the Day Line steamer, Peter Stuyvesant at 2:30 o'clock.

The boat tied up at the Phelan & Cahill dock where it was met by representatives of the Holy Name Society, Mayor Frederick Stang and members of the clergy. Thomas J. Murphy, president of the Holy Name Society and as representative of the Church of the Presentation of Port Ewen, welcomed the pilgrims and Mayor Frederick Stang on behalf of the City of Kingston spoke briefly, extending the welcome of the people of Kingston to the visitors.

SUPREME COURT Justice Roscoe V. Elsworth of Port Ewen in a very interesting manner told the story of the Port Ewen waterfront and its boatmen. Justice Elsworth said that from Port Ewen came more rivermen than from any other community along the Hudson between Albany and New York. He paid a tribute to these men who carry on the river traffic.

Supervisor Edward Eckert of the town of Esopus, on behalf of the people of the town, welcomed the visitors to the community.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. John J. O'Donnell, chaplain of the port of New York, was introduced by President Murphy and he spoke on behalf of the International Longshoremen's Association and Capt. William V. Bradley, formerly of Kingston, president of

Marlborough Man Pleads Guilty to Drunken Driving

A Marlborough resident, arrested at 6:10 p. m. Saturday charged with driving in the city of Kingston while intoxicated, pleaded guilty in city court this morning and was fined $75 or 75 days.

Henry Conklin, 60, arested by Officers Edward Edwards and Harold DeGraff on Washington avenue near Hurley avenue, paid the fine imposed by Judge Raymond J. Mino.

IT WAS REPORTED that a car operated by Robert Hughes of 3 Washington avenue was forced off the Boulevard by Conklin who then ran into and damaged several guard posts near Lawton Park.

Police said Hughes pursued the car into the uptown section, stopping to report the incident to Officers DeGraff and Edwards who continued the pursuit and made the arrest.

Harry DeWitt, 71, of 38 Emerick street, who was arrested by Officers Francis Buchanan and Gurnsey Burger, Jr., at 9:42 a. m. Saturday charged with driving without an operator's license, was fined $15 or 15 days. He paid the fine.

THE ARREST FOLLOWED a collision between a 1937 pickup truck operated by DeWitt and a 1954 sedan owned and operated by Dwitt Day, 26, of Kingston Terrace, police said. Both were traveling south on Foxhall avenue at the time of the collision, it was reported.

The right front door and side of the Day car and the left front fender of the truck were reported damaged.

The case of Edward Morris, 22, of 461 Washington avenue, who was arrested by Officers Harold Bowers and Joseph Kivlan at 3:20 a. m., Sunday on Washington avenue near Hurley avenue charged with speeding, was set for Wednesday morning.

Otto Hillig, 78, Dies at Liberty

Liberty, Sept. 13 (AP)—Otto Hillig, who hired a pilot to fly him across the Atlantic in a single engine plane in 1931 for fun, died yesterday in Loomis Hospital. He was 78.

Hillig, a portrait photographer for over 50 years, became a flying enthusiast in the early days of air travel across the ocean. In 1931 he purchased a Bellanca plane, christened it "Liberty" after this town, and hired Holger Hoiriis, a Danish aviator as pilot.

The pair took off from here on June 24, made a stop in Newfoundland and then aimed for Denmark. They landed at Krefeld, Germany, after losing their course and running short of fuel.

HILLIG LATER got an official reception from New York city. He never told why he had determined to make the flight and associates said he had simply undertaken it as a sporting lark. A year or so later he planned a flight to Athens, Greece, but never made the trip.

Hillig was born in Germany and emigrated to this country at the age of 16.

In 1936, riding in on the Roosevelt landslide, he was elected to a one-year term in the state Assembly from Sullivan county. He was defeated for reelection and never sought any other public office.

Officers Floyd Krom and George Dohnken reported that the injuries resulted when a 1949 sedan, owned and operated by Joseph L. Diamond 23, of 67 West Union street, traveling north on the bridge, stopped for a red light at Wurts and Abeel streets about 2:25 a. m. and was struck from behind by a 1954 sedan, owned and operated by Jordan Taylor, 25, of 34 South Clinton street, Poughkeepsie.

Maine Vote May Be Reduced Due To Recent Storm

Portland, Maine, Sept. 13—Hurricane-battered Maine ballots today in an election watched nationally for possible influences on the make-up of the next Congress.

At stake, in Republican eyes, is continuation of 20 years' control of all top offices in Maine, and a chance to point the way to GOP victories in the 47 states voting in November.

DEMOCRATS INSIST the issue isn't the election's effects elsewhere but "what's best for Maine." They've called for an end to "90 years of one-party government."

Generally fair weather was forecast, but Hurricane Edna, which raked the state's most populous areas Saturday, is expected to cut the total vote. In 1950, the last "off year," 240,127 ballots were cast.

The polls must close by 7 p. m., EST, although vote-counting can start at 5 p. m., in communities with fewer than 300 people.

A SMALLER VOTE may benefit Democrats whose most spirited campaign in 20 years has been concentrated against reelection of Republican Gov. Burton M. Cross. The Democratic candidate is national committeeman Edmund S. Muskie.

Also asking re-election are Republican Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, whose 95,000 victory margin six years ago is a record, and three GOP congressmen.

Opposing Mrs. Smith, who never has been defeated for public office, is Paul A. Fullam, who never sought one before. Fullam teaches history at Colby College.

Congressmen Robert Hale, Charles P. Nelson and Clifford G. McIntire are opposed, respectively, by James C. Oliver, Thomas E. Delahanty and Kenneth B. Colbath.

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—The oils and coppers were given a higher whirl today in a firm stock market.

Key sections of the list displayed gains running from a point to around 2 points. The bulk of the list had changes in a fractional range with most issues higher.

Trading was brisk at times, but the total for the day was at a pace a bit under two million shares. Friday's market worked up a volume of 1,870,000 shares with prices higher.

Higher with the oils and coppers were the steels, motors, radio-televisions, chemicals, airlines, motion pictures, and farm implements.

Fire Rates

a local fire insurance man with a proposition that in view of the increased efficiency of firefighting equipment it might be possible to increase the distance from two to three miles from a firehouse in which the Class C rate would apply.

At the time there existed a firehouse in Woodstock and one in Wittenberg. The distance between the two fire houses was just over the two mile limit. Wilson sought to increase the distance from the then existing two mile limit to three miles to cover this "dead space" between the two fire districts in his town.

The matter was discussed among local fire insurance men and at the 1953 convention of the State Insurance Agents held at Syracuse, Allan L. Hanstein offered a resolution to have the distance increased to three miles. That resolution was approved by the convention and sent to the rating authorities of the State asking the Class C rate be extended to three miles from firehouses.

THAT ACTION WAS taken on several grounds, among them that the fire company members were better trained and better equipped and that the equipment now in use by most companies was much more effective. Better roads also makes it easier to move equipment to the scene of fires and in winter roads are also cleared of snow following storms. For these reasons and others the committee felt justified in seeking an extension of the Class C area and asking form a rate credit.

When the matter was made known in Ulster county many districts and town boards passed resolutions seeking the change and the matter was pushed from various directions. Assemblyman Wilson and Senator Arthur H. Wicks both supported the movement and backed it through action at Albany.

Announcement today of the extension of the two-mile limit to three miles and in addition a reduction in insurance rates in many instances will bring about savings of from 5½ to 25 per cent, the State Department announced.

THE REDUCED FIRE rates were filed by the New York Fire Insurance Rating Organization and accepted by the State Insurance Department. Rates for the extended coverage endorsement, which is generally attached to the residence fire insurance policy to provide coverage against windstorms, hurricanes and other perils, will not be affected by the revision.

Generally the reductions apply only to buildings. Rates for fire insurance on contents have not been reduced except in a few instances.

Sharpest reduction was made in the rates for insurance on seasonal dwellings and their contents located in upstate Class C and D territories which include the rural areas. Owners of many such dwellings will pay 25 per cent less than they have been paying under the old rates.

HOMEOWNERS WHO live between two and three miles from fire department stations in 1,000 upstate communities which qualify for the Class C protection will have their insurance costs cut further by the new ruling which will permit the owner to pay the Class C rate instead of the Class D rate which applied prior to the change. The combination of the rate revision and the adoption of the new rule will result in savings to these property owners of more than 40 per cent.

Average savings for owners of typical frame and brick dwellings are expected to run between 6 and 16 per cent.

Zwicker Swears Truth Was Told

Washington, Sept. 13 (AP)—Brig. Gen. Ralph K. Zwicker swore today he told only the truth when he testified before Sen. McCarthy last Feb. 18. McCarthy testified last week that the decorated general at least "misstated the facts."

This and other conflicting testimony went into the record as the special senate committee considering censure charges against McCarthy moved through what may be the last day of its hearings.

One of the charges against McCarthy is that he abused Zwicker at the Feb. 18 hearing, when McCarthy questioned Zwicker about an honorable discharge given Maj. Irving Peress. McCarthy has called Peress a "Fifth Amendment Communist."

Primary Day Is Set for Tuesday

Tuesday is primary day when enrolled voters may go to the polls and cast their vote for candidates whose name will appear on the official ballot on Election Day.

There are no known contests in the county this year and polls will be open from noon until 9 p. m.

Those selected on primary day will become the official candidates for office at the November election. At unofficial conventions held by the two major parties candidates have been recommended to the enrolled voters but these recommended candidates need not be those selected on primary day. Under the free political system of this country any enrolled voter is entitled to cast his or her vote for a candidate of his or her choice on primary day and the person selected on primary day by the voters will become the official candidate for office.

Dulles Says

from any assault by the Chinese Reds.

The big unanswered question has been—and still is—whether those orders also call for defense of Quemoy, which has been under shellfire attack from the Red mainland.

Dulles, who flew here from the Far East yesterday, repeatedly declined to say categorically just what orders the Seventh Fleet may have received, or will receive, in connection with Quemoy.

"That obviously would not be in the national interest," the secretary declared.

HIS ASSERTION that American military might can turn back any Red Chinese assault on Formosa came in response to a question as to whether the U. S. has any plan for retaking Formosa if it should fall to the Communists.

He termed the possibility of such a development "so totally and utterly remote" that he doubts such a plan exists.

Atty. Gen. Brownell and FBI Chief Hoover came to Denver to tell Eisenhower about their plans for use of the new anti-Communist legal weapons provided by the 83rd Congress.

Brownell called them "powerful weapons," and added:

"I would like to say that the aim of the administration in this area is to utterly destroy the Communist party U. S. A., and its activities within the United States."

ONE OF THE NEW statutes outlaws the Communist party and provides for cracking down on Red-infiltrated unions. Another grants immunity from prosecution, under certain conditions, to those who testify against others suspected of subversive activities.

Hoover, who rarly holds a news conference, volunteered that the FBI already has been approached by Communists who have expressed willingness to testify against former fellow conspirators.

Hoover also said, in reply to a question, that there now are about 25,000 Communist party members in the United States. He called that the lowest "in years," but cautioned that party officials have adopted "vigorous security measures" in an effort to weed out disloyal comrades and undercover FBI agents.

The efforts to oust such agents has not been very successful, Hoover said.

In addition to reporting on his conference with Chiang Kai-Shek on Formosa, Dulles gave Eisenhower and the security council a first hand report on the new eight nation pact which he signed for the United States in Manila last week. It is aimed against Communist aggression in southeast Asia.

Sussin will also maintain his present office at 604 Delaware avenue.

The Main street office has been decorated in simple provincial and antique decor, designed for maximum patient comfort, it was reported.

Negotiations for the purchase of the Conway property were handled by Raymond E. Craft, Kingston business real estate broker.

The Delaware avenue office has also been completely renovated and has an X-ray laboratory containing the latest equipment designed for chiropractic spinal examination. The office features knotty pine paneling, wall-to-wall carpeting and modern furnishings.

Sussin is a graduate of The Palmer School of Chiropractic and has been practicing locally for three years. He is a member of the International Chiropractors Association and is public relations chairman for the Hudson Valley District of the Chiropractic Association of New York.

A RELATIVELY NEW process in shipping fresh sweet corn is being used extensively this year at the Davenport Farm at Lomontville, which has about 1,000 acres in sweet corn. Units known as Iced Corn Bags permit the shipper to extend the distance which corn may be sent to market, giving an added advantage of allowing the shipper to reach markets where better prices prevail at a given time. Each bag is packed with 20 pounds of ice and 50 ears of corn. The ice helps keep the corn fresh and retains the green appearance of the outside of the ear. The Davenport Farm ships from eight to 10 truckloads a day at the height of the season, most of it to the New York market, although some has been shipped in the new Iced Corn Bags as far as Miami, Fla., as well as to Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Buffalo, and Boston. The Davenport Farm is owned by Edward Davenport of Accord; Francis Davenport, Stone Ridge; Robert Davenport, Wawarsing and Gordon Davenport, Marbletown. (Freeman Photo)

BOOK REVIEW

To further increase interest in the Kingston Library the following review by Mrs. G. Cramer Dodge is published.

THE LITTLE ARK

By JAN de HARTOG

This is a charming little novel based on the floods of January 1913, which engulfed a part of Holland. It will be of special interest to those Kingstonians who so generously responded to the call for aid from our distressed Mother country.

The hero and heroine of this tale are 10-year-old Jan Brink, orphaned by a bomb, and an Indonesian orphan, 12-year-old Adinda de la Maison Rouge, adopted children of Parson and Mrs. Grijpma of Niewerland, Holland. Now Parson Grijpma was growing too old to climb the 69 steps to the belfry of his church and so sent the children up to beat upon the bells with hammers (the bell rope had long since been broken) to summon his flock to worship, and upon other occasions. They were delighted and soon the belfry became their favorite playground. Gradually they acquired a dog, "Bussy", a kitten, "Noisette" and a rabbit, "Ko". With them they played for hours in the belfry, pelting them and each other with hymn books to liven things up.

The day when they tolled the bells for the funeral of one of Parson Grijpma's parishioners, they saw many unusual things happening. A terrific wind was blowing up, the hat of one of the mourners in the churchyard was torn from her head just as her brother was lowered into the grave; Mrs. Ool's tiny houseboat in the harbor was torn from its moorings and someone rescued her just in time. From then on the wind grew wilder. In the evening Parson Grijpma decided to take his family up to the belfry to be above the swiftly rising tide, and to sound the alarm. The children got to the belfry but neither Parson nor Mrs. Grijpma made it. However, Mrs. Grijpma's pet rooster got there and made a great nuisance of himself.

Dutifully Jan and Adinda sounded the alarm from the belfry and that night they alternatenately slept and watched the people of the town as they struggled to save the dikes.

IN THE MORNING they found that the whole village was inundated. People clung to the few roof tops, tree tops and telegraph poles, etc. from which fishing boats were trying to rescue them. Also as he looked down the stairwell, Jan saw the dead body of Mrs. Grijpma. Petrified by what he had seen, Jan buried his head in Adinda's lap. That was how they spent the second night.

Next morning Adinda decided that they must try to get into Mrs. Ool's houseboat, which was wedged against the belfry roof. It took courage and ingenuity. Adinda had both (she had been in tight spots before in Indonesia), and so she got herself, Jan and the animals safely into it through the lavatory window. There they found food, clothing, of a sort, and a tiny piano, and they took full advantage of each.

As the houseboat drifted around the children saw many horrors from the windows. Dead people, horses and cattle floated by. Death and destruction were all around them. With oriental calm Adinda looked upon the scene unmoved. Jan played upon the piano.

Soon they were discovered by a cruising helicopter. After that they passed from one relief group to another, always receiving tender treatment from one harassed, overworked volunteer rescuer after another. Shielded as far as possible from the worst scenes of tragedy, they still saw scores of wrecked homes, dykes piled high with dead animals and people, hundreds of coffins, mass burials and even worse horrors. Most of this they looked upon with childish detachment. They also saw deeds of heroism which they were never to forget.

THE MIXTURE OF HORSE play, wise cracks and hard, dirty work done by the nurses, doctors and coffin bearers aboard the hospital ship is an unforgettable picture of devoted brotherhood at work.

In all this the children's great anxiety was for their adopted father. When Jan overheard the hospital ship staff talking about two elderly men—a Catholic priest and one Parson Grijpma—working around the clock to comfort the sick and bereaved and to perform countless burial services, he hurried to tell Adinda that their father was alive and where he was. After that nothing could keep them from going to join him, although they were warned that the town was a frightful pest hole. They managed to get there by hiding in an empty coffin, one of many being shipped to that place of desolation.

The book closes upon the glad reunion of Parson Grijpma, Adinda, Jan, Bussy, Noisette, Ko and even the bad-tempered cock, Prince, as they settle down for a well-earned rest in the little houseboat of Mrs. Ool.

West should have opened the bidding with one heart instead of one no-trump in today's hand. The count was right, since West had 16 points. The stoppers were right, since West had a stopper in each of the four suits. The shape was wrong, however, since it is not wise to open the bidding with one no-trump when your distribution is 5-4-2-2.

North had a reasonable double of one no-trump, and South passed for penalties. West sought the safety of his long heart suit, whereupon North and South proceeded to overbid up to four spades. In short, the hand was not at all well bid, but it led to a very interesting point of play.

West opened the seven of hearts, and declarer saw at once that he was doomed to lose a trick in each suit. There was a slight hope, however, and South decided to try for it.

Declarer played a low heart from dummy at the first trick, since it was remotely possible that West had led low from the king-queen. East won with the queen of hearts and returned the suit, forcing out dummy's ace. Declarer knocked out the ace of trumps, ruffed the heart return and led the king of clubs to force out the ace of clubs.

West could have taken the ace of diamonds at this stage to defeat the contract, but he thought he could get more if he waited. This was, however, the wrong time to be greedy.

West returned the jack of clubs to dummy's queen and South had his first moment of real hope. He led a trump to his own hand and returned the jack of diamonds towards dummy.

West quickly played low, hoping that his partner had the queen and that South would lose a finesse to that card. This was the break that South had been waiting for. When the jack of diamonds held the trick, South could cash the ten and nine of clubs, discarding dummy's remaining diamonds. It was then easy, of course, to ruff his own last diamond in the dummy and thus make the "impossible" game contract.

Do You Remember

By SOPHIE MILLER

Lots of folks from Kingston and vicinity visit Saratoga race track during August so I thought they would be interested to know that the first running track at the Spa was opened when the Civil War was on, so writes Tip Roseberry in the Albany paper. At the time horses were in such demand for military use that they were scarce for racing. It was said, you practically had to hide a good racehorse to keep the government from confiscating him. They say an earlier race course was begun in 1847—a half-mile trotting track with purses of from $50 to $200. But it seems trotting races never became too popular, John Morrissey's track, who founded the idea August 3, 1863, was mostly interested to give his rich gambling house patrons something to do during the day. It is said, the grandstand was small and the track was too narrow. The races are still going on at the same location, this being the oldest course still in use for regular race meetings in the U. S. The 1863 track (Horse Haven) is still in use for early morning workouts. In those days, races started at 11 or 11:30 a. m. Steeplechases were regularly carded.

There is so much that can be written about the Mary Powell. I am always finding items on her in The Kingston Freeman. In the August 16, 1910 issue the history of the Powell is covered because it was a sort of semi-centennial. Now with the exhibit at the Senate House Museum starting Sept. 18 it is interesting to gather these items. The original Mary Powell was built in 1861 for Captain E. A. Anderson and was 270 feet long. Everything that went into the boat was of the very best quality, the upper-work and the stanchions being of red cedar for lightness and as a safeguard against rot. Four things shaped all of Captain Anderson's thinking of steamboats, "speed, safety, comfort and lines." It is not surprising, then, that later the leading marine engineer of the world, Frank E. Kirby, when taking the lines of the Mary Powell for modeling the Hendrick Hudson, should say, "The man that built this boat was 20 years ahead of his time." It has often been asked why no other boat was ever built on the model of the Mary Powell. The answer is very simple—that model was burned in a fire that swept away part of the shipyard where she was built four years after her launching. Attempts have been made to reproduce her lines, notably in the Richmond, built for the James river line, but such attempts have never resulted satisfactorily, the boats being either too slow or very "unlucky" during their career.

Her 50 years of history is remarkable, most of the original crew stayed on from the beginning they were so proud to be members of the staff of the Mary Powell. She was enlarged and rebuilt from time to time but so carefully that she never lost her speed or beauty. In those earlier days the boats sat on top of the water and the blades dipped just deep enough to drive them skimming over the surface, hence their remarkable time, later the boats were sunk too deep in the water. Captain E. A. Anderson would not even let his son take a trunk aboard, for he said, "We've got 20 men on this boat and if every one of them carried a trunk like that we could never make our time. You take out what you need and put it in a handkerchief and send the rest back home."

Two Kiwanians At Convention

Delegates from the Kiwanis Club of Kingston who are attending the New York District (State) Convention of Kiwanis International at Buffalo this week are Herman C. Schwenk, Sr., first vice president, and John R. Warren, secretary.

The convention opened Sunday evening and continues through Wednesday noon. Among the items to be discussed is the bid of Monticello for the 1955 convention. If the Sullivan county village is named convention site, it will become the smallest community ever to be host to the state Kiwanis meeting. Monticello is in the same Kiwanis district as Kingston.

EYE RESEARCH NEEDED

The Kingston Lions Club sponsors locally of Sight-Saving month, which is being observed during September, reports that it is more than a little shocking to learn from the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness that the almost miraculous discoveries reported from the research laboratories of the nation do not include many clues to the causes of the serious eye diseases which result in blindness.

With a million Americans suffering from glaucoma and even more losing vision from cataracts, uveitis, retinitis pigmentosa, retrolental fibroplasia, to mention but a few of these diseases, there is obviously a need for more intensified basic research.

That the research under way at the present time is inadequate seems proved. The National Society points out that all the funds being devoted to eye disease research, including both public appropriations and private contributions, amount to less than a penny per person per year.

With our population increasing, and with the span of human life lengthening, it is not surprising to learn that blindness, since much of it involves an age factor, is on the increase. As things stand now, says the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, 750,000 men, women and children in America, now living and able to see, will become blind before they die.

The costs of blindness, in personal tragedy, family hardship and economic waste, are huge; multiplied by three-quarters of a million they become staggering.

Additional research must be encouraged and made possible by the funds to back it up. The research program of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, active in the conservation of human vision for 46 years, merits thoughtful consideration by us all.

In the meantime, each of us will do well to follow the Society's recommendations for taking care of our own eyes. To this end, the organization, a nonprofit undertaking since its foundation in 1908, has agreed to send to any reader of The Freeman a free folder, "Your Wonderful Eyes."

MOONSHINE TROUBLE

Internal Revenue Commissioner T. Coleman Andrews has stepped up his department's efforts to crack down on the illegal production of whiskey. Using Virginia as an experimental area he has taken inspectors out of legal distilleries and sent them out to look for stills. He expected to extend the plan.

In recent years the production of moonshine whiskey has increased, with a sharp upward surge in its production and sale since 1952 when the tax on legal whiskey was raised by $1.50 per gallon. The increase in the price of legal whiskey necessitated by the tax boost made it easier to sell moonshine and encouraged more illegal operators to come into the field.

The illegal production of whiskey is bad in many ways. It penalizes honest distillers who abide by the law and maintain production standards. It deprives the national treasury of taxes. Improperly made whiskey, produced without having to meet rigid standards, can result in serious trouble for the people who drink it.

It is good to see Commissioner Andrews taking steps to deal with moonshining.

RED NAVAL GROWTH

Our naval officials, as well as naval authorities in Britain, are concerned about the growth of Russia's naval strength. Our Navy has estimated that at the present rate of expansion the Russian Navy will be greater than ours in about ten years—at least in numbers.

Russia is closing what was once a large gap in naval strength with the United States as the result of an expanded program of ship production in the Soviet. The fact that the United States has commissioned no major warships since the end of World War II has also contributed to the Russian gain.

The efficiency of a navy does not depend entirely on the number of ships. Our country may still be able to maintain its naval lead despite the Russian expansion if we employ better ships and carriers. But the fact that Russia is making a determined bid for naval supremacy is worth study.

Those who live only for today will never find tomorrow.

'These Days'

ON SENILITY

It would seem that thus far one of the principal charges against Senator Joe McCarthy before the Watkins Committee is that he is a harsh, gruff man whose selectivity of words is inadequate to conform with Senatorial etiquette. He is said to use base and degrading language about his colleagues. In a word, he is accused of being something of a boor in very polite society. He calls other Senators bad names; he has not yet been accused of sticking out his tongue, which he well might do.

The worst word he used is apparently senile. He has been accused of calling Senator Ralph Flanders senile. He is also being accused of referring to other Senators in language to which Marines but not Senators are accustomed. He is accused of saying that one, Hendrickson of New Jersey, had no guts. Guts is an ugly word. Joe should have used the word, colon, but nobody would have known what he meant, except those whose colon is a problem to them. He might have said that Hendrickson lacked a colon. He might also have used the word, derma, which some people stuff with a mixture of suet, flour and spices and then eat.

As to the senility of Senator Flanders, that is a measurable matter. It is possible to determine medically whether the Senator from Vermont or any other Senator possesses faculties which have so degenerated that no longer is he able to employ them adequately. Age has nothing to do with it. Herbert Hoover at 80 is younger, to my certain knowledge, than he was at 60 Bernard Baruch at 84 is so active that he tires out his friends. Mrs. Fritz Kreisler at 85 can argue a younger man to a standstill.

However and alas, there comes a time when the blood vessels do pinch off from too much cholesterol or for some other reason and there can be a limp or a twitch or just a plain loss of capacity for prolonged cerebration. I once knew a statesman—let him be nameless—who could only work two or three hours a day and then he would fall asleep. The world regarded him as a great man; his secret was well-kept by those who did his thinking for him.

The Watkins Committee called in two Associated Press reporters to prove that Joe said naughty things about his colleagues. They should have called us all in and we might testify as to what most Senators say about their colleagues, but not for publication. The trouble with Joe is that he talks too much for publication and often too truthfully. Had he studied the technique of Talleyrand, who was one of history's really great statesmen, he would have learned perhaps that public men speak the whole truth only when they are alone with their consciences.

Senile is a harsh word and I now understand Senator Flanders' pursuing anger. The fear, with all of us, is that it might be true. On the other hand, it may only be hyperinsulinism, the favorite new ailment which is very expensive and therefore important. It is much cheaper to buy a mink coat than to fight hyperinsulinism. Or it may be a creeping forgetfulness. Or it may be nothing more than pains and aches from brittleness and calcium deposits. Who can really tell but a physician or a psychiatrist?

Men do grow old, some of them at a very early age. A class reunion is the most unhappy of all events, after the 25th year, because nobody can really look and act as old as the other fellow. Many of my classmates are grandfathers and revel in being patriarchs. Perhaps even more distressing is to permit curiosity to drive you to have lunch with the girl you left behind a quarter of a century ago. And all the time you wonder whether she thinks the same about you. It is sad to grow venerable, except in an older China where the ancient ones were respected for being so.

And thus, we come back to Joe. Maybe he should be censured for calling Flanders senile. He should have been more polite to a fellow Republican. All he may say is that the old duffer . . . but who am I to put words in an Irish Marine's mouth?

That Body of Yours

BANTHINE RELIVES PAIN IN ABDOMEN

I have written before about the proprietary drug called Banthine which was first introduced a few years ago with remarkable results in the treatment of pain from peptic ulcer. Now we are told of a similar preparation, Pro-Banthine which was given a trial in the treatment of 156 patients with various disorders of the stomach and intestine.

The most striking effect of this new agent was the relief of pain in peptic ulcer and the quieting down of the movements of the wall of the stomach and intestine in patients with diarrhoea.

The relief of pain was prompt and usually complete. Most patients were relieved of pain within 48 to 72 hours after doses of 30 to 45 mg. of the drug four times daily were begun.

Of the 156 patients, 129 had active peptic ulcer and 106 of these were completely relieved of pain, 12 were significantly relieved and 11 were considered failures because they could not tolerate the drug or were not relieved of their symptoms. Anyone who has suffered the severe pain of peptic ulcer will understand what a blessing the relief of this pain is.

Now, with every new drug, we find many persons who actually believe they are relieved of their symptoms but in actual fact this is not so when their condition is investigated thoroughly. Was this the way with Pro-Banthine? No—actual improvement in the condition of their ulcer was taking place as proven by X-ray studies which showed that there was a speeding up of the healing process in the ulcer crater while these patients were on Pro-Banthine.

"Patients with severe symptoms should receive 30 to 45 mg. of the drug every six hours. After two or more weeks, a maintenance dose of 15 mg. four times daily may be used. In patients with less severe manifestations, the beginning dose of 15 mg. four times daily may be given. If the symptoms recur while the patient is on the lowered maintenance dosage, the dosage should be raised again."

Six patients with diarrhoea were either completely or significantly relieved of their symptoms. This drug also proved helpful in the control of patients who have had operations on the last part of the small intestine. The only side-effects noted was a tendency to frequent urination and headache but these were rarely sufficiently severe to require discontinuation of the drug.

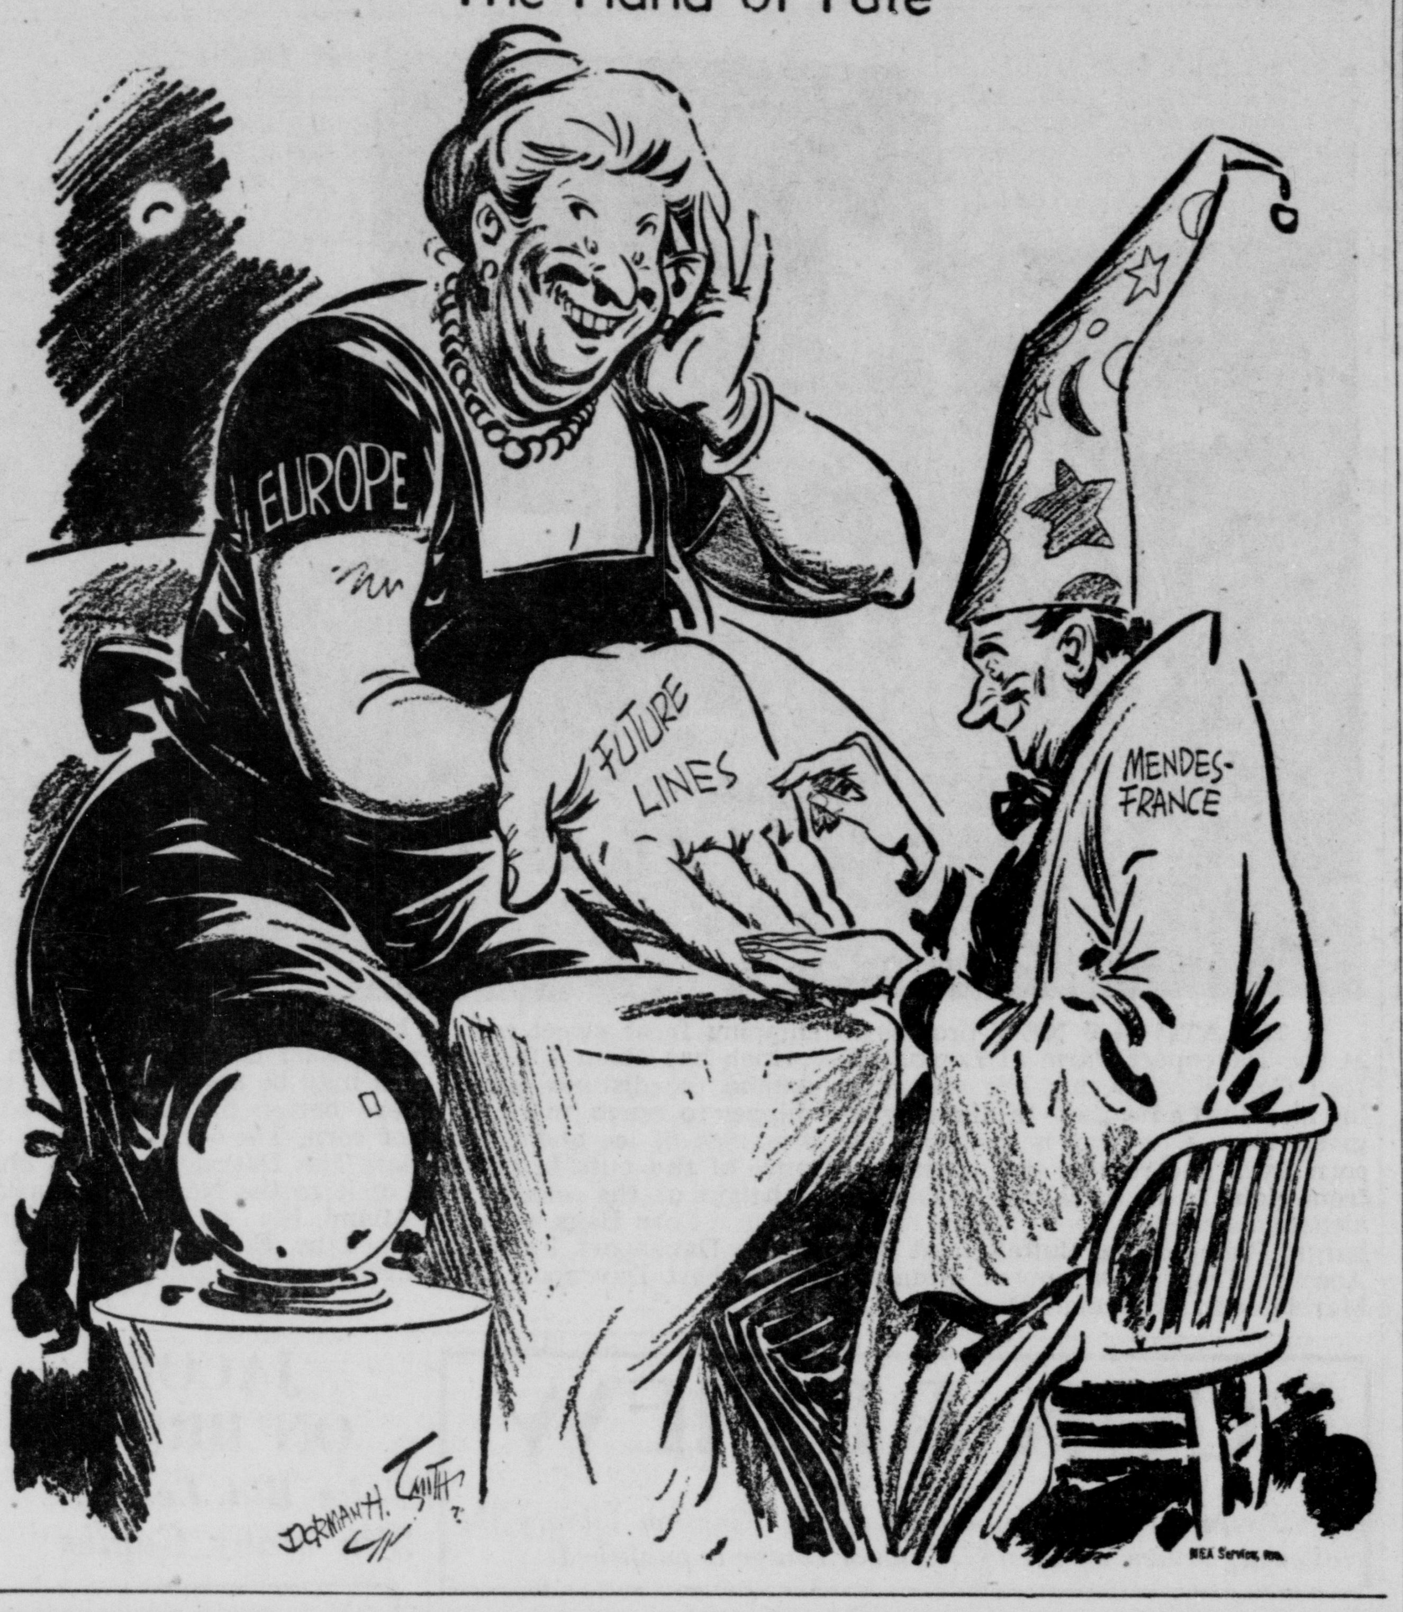
The Hand of Fate



Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington (NEA) — Behind the past year's not-too-good labor relations record in government-owned atomic energy plants is a touchy personnel problem with overtones of union politics.

Fundamentally, the labor problem in atomic energy is that while the employes work for private industry contractors who operate the plants, the government has a vested national defense interest.

Strikes in atomic energy installations therefore can't be allowed, as President Eisenhower pointed out when he issued his most recent Taft-Hartley injunction order at Oak Ridge, Tenn., on Aug. 12.

During the war, atomic energy workers conceded that there could be no strikes in defense industries. But in 1948, Oak Ridge had the first atomic energy industry strike. It went the Taft-Hartley route. There was an 80-day injunction, which ran out without settlement. Then, after a 50-hour negotiation session, Cyrus S. Ching, director of Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, got an agreement that sent the men back to work.

MR. CHING SAW THAT something special would have to be done to prevent strike recurrences. He therefore recommended to President Truman the appointment of a three-man atomic energy labor-management relations panel, reporting directly to the White House.

Head of this panel was Will H. Davis, former chairman of the War Labor Board and one of the most experienced labor relations men in the country. In return for this special consideration of their problems, the unions gave Davis a waiver on a no-strike pledge, and management gave a no-lockout pledge. It wasn't wholly effective, but it worked pretty well for five years.

When the Eisenhower administration came to town in 1943, members of the Davis panel submitted their routine resignations. They were accepted in March. For a time there was no labor-management panel.

When the White House reorganized the panel in July, Cyrus Ching was made its chairman. That was fine as far as it went, but for housekeeping purposes, this panel was put under Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service in Department of Labor. This was in line with President Eisenhower's desire to decentralize his Administration and get a lot of time-consuming activities out of the White House.

IN THIS CASE, it didn't work. Call it petty personal pique on the part of the atomic energy labor union leaders if you will. But their government panel has been down-graded from the White House to a third-level government division which was always under constant pressure from labor and management on all the other U. S. labor disputes.

Atomic energy leaders took the four-month interval when there was no White House panel to declare that its death had vioded all their past no-strike pledges. Their grievances were being given no consideration, they said. And the past year of troubled labor relations in atomic energy began.

Since that time there have been strikes over wages, hours, working conditions, housing, health, community facilities like schools and all kinds of fringe benefits.

A complicating factor in this situation is that the atomic energy business has expended from three main installations to a dozen with over 1500 employes. Hanford has 18,500, Savannah River 20,000, Portsmouth 22,000 and Oak Ridge 27,000. The Atomic Energy Commission itself has 6000 government employes. But its contractors have 137,100—of whom 73,600 are in operations and 63,600 on construction.

THESE INVOLVE HUNDREDS of labor contracts with that many contractors and subcontractors. Many contractors work on a cost plus basis and don't care what wages or fringe benefits the government has to pay.

Uniform wages and working conditions are next to impossible under these circumstances, even though union leaders might like them. There is also little possibility that Congress would pass a law authorizing uniform pay scales as it does for government employes.

Nevertheless, a conference of Machinists' Union representatives, all cleared for security, is meeting at Los Alamos, N. M.—right inside the big laboratory there—to discuss these problems Sept. 9-11.

CIO President Walter Reuther and AFL Metal Trades President James Brownlow met recently with AEC Commissioner Joseph Campbell and General Manager Kenneth Nichols. One new point brought up by Mr. Reuther was the need for an AEC Labor Advisory committee to help plan policy on their common problems.

Something of this kind may be worked out to repair the damage to AEC labor relations since the old Davis panel was killed.

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell's designation of David L. Cole as head of a new five-man commission to study atomic labor relations is the first step in this direction. Cole, who succeeded Mr. Ching as Director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, was not continued in that post by the Eisenhower administration. Now he's called back to handle its number one labor problem.

Maine Voting Is Only Congressional Contest in September, Hence National Test

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Sept. 13—Maine's election for United States senator and governor will be talked about this week nationally not so much because of the saying—"as goes Maine so goes the nation"—but because it is the only state holding a congressional election in September, and it's therefore the first national test of the strength of the two major parties. It is always worthwhile examining each of the party percentages to see whether it is above or below other years.

What is said by the partisan leaders after an election is usually an alibi if there's a defeat, just as an exaggerated emphasis is given if there's a victory. So this time a pre-election forecast is presented which this correspondent obtained from a private conversation with an important Republican leader who naturally didn't want to have his name used. It will be interesting after all the votes have been counted to compare his pre-election analysis with the actual totals for each party. Here is a man who has held high office himself, and who might be described as a Taft Republican and hence not politically friendly in the past to Senator Margaret Chase Smith, who was on the Eisenhower side in the 1952 preconvention fight.

Mrs. Smith won the senatorial race in 1948 by a majority of 96,000 and it was just about twice as big as the majority by which Dewey carried the state in November. It was twice as big a majority, too, as the successful Republican nominee for senator had received two years before.

"Mrs. Smith will win again," said the anonymous prophet, "but by a reduced majority, perhaps 25,000 to 30,000 less than she did in 1948. That's because she will not get some of the Democratic votes she got in 1948 when she didn't hammer the Democrats as hard as she is doing this year. She has been making eight or ten speeches a day—good Republican speeches—and if the Republican candidate for governor pulls through she will be entitled to much of the credit for bringing out the party vote—especially the votes of disaffected Republicans."

"Is the governorship in doubt?" I asked.

"Yes, it is close, and you must remember that two years ago the Republican governor who is running for re-election this time won the state by only 8,000 actual majority, though he had a larger plurality in the three-cornered race. Remember also that about every 20 years, Maine elects a Democratic governor. It happened in 1914 and it happened in 1934. It might be said to be due in 1954 from the standpoint of a cycle, and if we win it will be very close."

"Has McCarthy been an issue in the campaign for senator?" Was the next question, inasmuch as Mrs. Smith is known as a critic of the Wisconsin senator.

"It has hardly been mentioned at all. The Democrats have kept quiet about it, presuming of course that they might get disaffected Republicans that way, and the Republicans have said nothing in order not to lose votes. But it is interesting that it hasn't been an issue so far as the campaign itself is concerned."

"Do you think there'll be a big stay-at-home among the Republicans, particularly the Taft wing of the party?"

"I don't think we'll be able to tell the reason if there's any falling off in the Republican vote because, you see, we have just had a hurricane here in Maine and the roads are still pretty bad."

"But will not the Democrats have the same trouble getting to the polls as the Republicans?"

"No" was the reply. "Most of the Democratic votes are concentrated in the cities, while the heaviest Republican vote is in the rural areas."

"So you look for a Republican victory for senator and a close race for governor?"

"That's it, but whether or not you will be able to construe it as a national trend is something else. For remember that Mrs. Smith is a popular candidate, and while the gossip is that she is provoked because Mrs. Roosevelt endorsed her Democratic opponent, she may still get many Democratic votes."

"Has the Democratic party put up a strong campaign?"

"Yes, they have had plenty of money for television, radio and so on.

"Where did they get it?"

"The gossip is that Averill Harriman has been helping, and some of his supporters hope to get Maine's delegates for him to the 1956 national Democratic convention."

So that was the confidential preview on Maine by a well-posted Republican leader after he had made a private canvass of the situation in talks with local leaders before the election.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Sept. 12—The revolutionary program written by Colonel E. M. House, who was Woodrow Wilson's "other self," remained practically secret from the general public for 42 years. This cabal against the Constitution was set forth in a novel entitled "Philip Dru: Administrator—a story of tomorrow, 1920-1935." It came out, anonymously in 1912. The publisher was B. W. Huebsch, of New York.

He is now treasurer of the Civil Liberties Union and a member of the American Commission for UNESCO, the "educational" and "cultural" arm of the UN. UNESCO recently gravely concerned itself with the preservation of the Tasmanian wolf.

The 1919 and 1920 printings of "Philip Dru" contain on the title page a religious symbol not found on the title page of the 1912 edition. There is no clue to the reason why Huebsch made this change. He is now in Europe. Mr. Huebsch over a stretch of 20 years has been connected with 13 organizations which were described by the House Committee of Un-American Activities as subversive. Five of them were so described by attorneys general. Usually, persons in this position insist that such descriptions are unjustified and Huebsch may want to make this reservation, too.

House did not acknodledge authorship of "Philip Dru" until long after he had actually planted his first President in the White House. That was Woodrow Wilson, who started the nation on a course away from the Constitution. To the esthete House's bashfulness is quite understandable. "Dru" is a terrible mess as "writing." Yet it seems more likely that House disowned it for political reasons. He was by then well known as the counselor of Woodrow Wilson and his scheme repudiated the Constitution and countenanced civil war and dictatorship.

Charles Seymour, the Yale historian, later president and now retired, wrote a compilation of House's "papers" in which he flatly admitted that House did write "Philip Dru". He volunteers his belief that House had concentrated on "the careful working-out of the political and social ideas." Some reviewers were "piqued by the daring and ingenuity of these ideas" and treated the book as a political manifesto. That it certainly was. It was only moderately influential with Wilson, however. House's main attack on the constitution was carried out by Franklin D. Roosevelt. For this reason, "Philip Dru" should be reprinted in a big, cheap edition.

The copyright was renewed in 1940 by House's daughter, Mrs. Janet H. Auchincloss. This time the author was plainly stated. There are current intimations of a determination to reproduce the book, regardless of the copyright, if Mrs. Auchincloss does not manufacture plenty of copies to meet the demand, this to be done by mimeograph or other cheap process, on the ground that public welfare justifies such violation of her property right. This course would be consistent with House's own principles, expressed in the book.

My copy, autographed by House to George Sylvester Viereck, his journalistic ghost, cost me $50. Two other copies have sold for $40 recently and I have reliable word that House asked Huebsch to recall all he could of the 1912 printing and destroy them.

Among the articles for liberty which Viereck ghosted for House was one entitled: "Does American Need A Dictator? A warning to selfish wealth and narrow-minded politicians' capitalistic civilization." This came out less than two months before Franklin D. Roosevelt first took the oath with that speech about money-changers and the fear of fear. Both of these thoughts were contained in "Philip Dru". Right after his nomination Roosevelt went to Beverly, Mass., on a yawl with two of his sons and called on House, "the seer of Beverly." Viereck says further that House was the one who put it in Roosevelt's head to fly to the 1932 Democratic convention in Chicago to accept the nomination, a dramatic gesture which Hitler imitated when he went to Munich for the massacre, or purge.

The liberty piece did not commit House, nor by inference, Roosevelt, to actual violent revolution and dictatorship. It might rather be said that House entertained evil thoughts, or let them entertain him, but did not counsel commission. My spiritual adviser says the one is as sinful as the other.

Thomas W. Phelps, of the Wall Street Journal's Washington Bureau, showed remarkable acumen in a story published in July, 1937. Mr. Phelps wrote: "As Congress puts the finishing touches on the legislative program for the first four years of the Roosevelt administration, Colonel E. M. House, confidant of President Roosevelt, emerges as the prophet, if not the real brain trust of the New Deal. Almost 25 years ago, House wrote of a revolution led by a young West Pointer, who triumphed in one brief but bloody battle; became a benevolent dictator and proceeded to reshape the American government. In its large outlines, almost the entire revolutionary program has been put through or is in process of being realized under two Democratic presidents who have served since House turned novelist for a few weeks."

Very few Americans had heard of all this until a few weeks ago when I discovered in the sanctimonious memoirs of Jonathan Daniels an admission that House did write the book. Years ago I had received indignant denials so I now exploited Daniels' admission with a whoop. However, even today few citizens have heard of it and hardly one in a million has read it. And, of course, the press will still ignore it diligently lest it be seen that a colleague has made an important historical discovery. Practically all our historians and our teaching professors either know nothing about all this or refuse to teach this historical information to their students. One of the most important political documents of our age has been blacked out.

Walk Is Constructed At West Camp Church

Saugerties, Sept. 11 — Last summer the members of the West Camp Auxiliary No. 2 constructed a sidewalk from the church parking lot to the parsonage back porch as a surprise to the vacationing Rev. Henry M. Schumann and his family.

The workers were so successful in securing the necessary laborers and material that they enthusiastically continued their work by building a cement sidewalk along the north side of the church.

These improvements challenged the men of the Cementon Auxiliary to keep the work going. Cementon, Aux. 1 therefore has taken the responsibility for the contsruction of the ornamental sidewalk in front of the church. A goodly portion of this was completed this week. The styling of the sidewalk was done by Julius Gentalen, member of the Church Council who also painted the altar painting.

Arthur Knoeppel through the courtesy of Knaust Bros., Inc. arranged for the layout details. The work has been in progress the past few weeks and should be completed shortly.

Building Fund Now At $2,021 for Firemen

Saugerties, Sept. 11 — The building fund of the Malden-West Camp Fire Company reached $2,021 according to a report given by Albert J. Cawein, financial secretary of the company's Building - Planning Committee. This amount included the receipts of the evening at the regular monthly meeting of the fire company at the Malden School Thursday night.

Frank Brockway, William Harry Smith and Leslie Whitehead, all of Malden, were proposed and declared duly elected into membership of the fire company.

President Smith reported that sand and gravel was drawn by the fire company from Trnka's Bathing Beach in Asbury at no cost to the company. The use of trucks was donated by Michael Scarselli and Cody Coal and Lumber Company both of Malden.

A communication was also received from the Young Couples Club of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church of West Camp stating that the young peoples group was sponsoring an annual fall square and round dance Friday night, Sept. 24 at the West Camp hall. The club made known that half of the net proceeds of the dance would be donated to the building fund for both firehouses. The Steve Jones orchestra well-known in the Saugerties-Catskill area has been contracted to supply the music for dancing from 9 to 1 a. m.

Hungry Bears

Detour, Mich. (AP)—A shortage of natural food has made bold invaders of bears in Michigan's Upper Peninsula. It's not unusual for bears to forage through garbage dumps in the area but recently they attacked and killed a yearling calf. Conservation officers now are warning all persons to keep their distance from all wild animals.

WITH THREE DENS already set up for Cub Pack 5 sponsored by the Jewish Community Center, opportunity for parents to register their sons as Cub Scouts will be afforded by Pack 5 tonight at the Jewish Community Center at 8 o'clock. According to Leon C. Miller, chairman of the Cub Pack Committee, Cub Scouts will be enrolled in the Pack only if their parents appear in person at the meeting this evening. Since the Cub Scout program is one which stresses home ties the participation of parents is essential for the fulfillment of Cub Scout objectives. Therefore, Miller underscores the fact that only upon personal appearance of the parents at tonight's meeting will application for new Cub Scouts be considered.

THE RUMINATOR

By HUMPHREY B. NEILL

A Column of Contrary Opinion

By HUMPHREY B. NEILL

Here we are, confronted with the annual Labor Day query: Where do we go from here?

We are likewise confronted with the chilling reality that "internationalism" is once again the snake in the grass — the thought-twister which prevents straight thinking.

It seems to me that what we might term "fringe emotionalism" is preventing either clear thinking, or realistic appraisals of the international turmoil. Note the emotional fringes of recent months: The television brawl over the Army-McCarthy controversy, which ended practically in a draw, as everyone suspected (except for the political overtones which were tossed into the reports). Then there is the present inquiry instigated by Senator Flanders which is also a time-waster and thought-distractor. And throughout the country other affairs of no vast import, aside from their bearings on the election of a Congressman or Senator, are among the fringe items that stir up emotions.

Now don't get the idea from this that your Ruminator "knows the answers" to the international conundrums. I have no wish to parade false wisdom before you. But I do not think it is "reactionary" to suggest that whether we like it or not we must go back for a fresh start.

EVER SINCE KOREA (or it would be more accurate to say, ever since Yalta and Potsdam) we have got ourselves into situations where we have had no "outs."

At some point "something has to give." There is just so much stretch in any taut situation. Isn't it a fact that sometime we shall have to go all the way in or pull all the way out. Will half-way measures be sufficient to deal with world problems over the long haul?

I cannot see how we can escape facing up to it, if we persist in trying to manage the affairs of the so-called free world (which it is evident the other nations don't wish us to try to do!) It is either to go all the way (and combat the Reds where they live) or to withdraw and let the other nations choose their own salvations. What alternative is there? As it is now, the free world is losing the cold war little by little. And, adding to the crises, the chipping away is frightfully costly, because the protective areas are becoming not only narrower but weaker.

AMONG PUBLICATIONS the Ruminator receives is one called "Train," from London. It is helpful in trying to appraise conditions. I find "Train" running on a somber track, but justifiably so, it seems to me, in view of the international outlook. The editor, having been on vacation, found the sun but fears the soul of Europe is lost. He writes: "What a record of a holiday which began in search for the sun! And where lies the soul of Europe in all this? As I encountered puzzlement turned to perplexity, doubts that turned to fear, and assertions that ended only in bewilderment, I felt as never before how Europe is disintegrating." He wrote how he felt the emotional chaos in France, visiting Paris when EDC died without debate. Thinking about the strength of communism in Italy and France, he ruminates over the delusion of "gimmeism" which seems to be making France and Italy falsly indifferent to communism. In other words, he thinks countless people in Europe are deluding themselves into supporting the government that will offer them the most, thereby aiding the real adherents of communism to continually increase their power and public support.

I probably do not need to go on. You are as conscious of these trends as I am. You have read in recent days of the bombarding of Nationalist China's tiny island, and the loss of American lives; of the shooting down of one of our planes off Siberia. You know of the propaganda and the war of words. It is all part of the same picture.

SO IT SEEMS evident that any post-Labor-Day commentary this year has to be focussed on international affairs if we hope to keep any sort of mental balance.

You may reply that it is always darkest before dawn. I can only respond that the Russian nights are long.

Between now and November we shall be mentally burdened with campaign claims and counter-claims. Meanwhile the international situation may worsen, because of the distraction of other events. The oft-repeated expression of our Secretary of State—the need for an "agonizing reappraisal"—is symptomatic: agonize is an amotional word; it reflects distraught thinking. Let us pray for realistic reappraisals instead.

Costly Garbage

Lexington, Ky. (AP)—Policemen checking on who dumped a pile of garbage on the roadside came up with a prize clue—a letter to Luther Lairson, 96 Thompson Road. He was fined $25. The letter was an overdue bill from a garbage collector—for less than the amount of the fine.

When you "Eat Humble Pie" today, you usually have to admit something that is unpleasant. The expression started as "umble pie," though. When the nobility of England would bag a deer hunting, they would eat the venison themselves . . . But the servants would get the liver and other organs (known as umbles) made into a pie.

SHOKAN NEWS

Shokan, Sept. 11—Commander Simeon Trowbridge of Olive Legion Post 1627 has made available this week the Legion hall at Ashokan for a session of intensive instruction of New York city police who are patroling the Ashokan Reservoir area. Members of the police force are taking part in a series of lectures and demonstrations given by representatives of the judiciary, the state conservation department and the sheriff's office. The modernly-equipped home of the local Legion post and auxiliary had until two years ago served as the schoolhouse for Olive District No. 4 and one of the Town of Hurley districts. During recent drouth spells, the excellent well at the building has proved a great boon to these people in northeast Olive whose wells and springs went dry.

Mrs. James Carpenter of Richmond Hill and daughter, Mrs. Joseph O'Reilly of Storrs, Conn., who have been at the Carpenter Ridge road camp, returned home Wednesday. Mrs. Carpenter and her husband recently took a vacation motor trip to Mississippi where they spent several days at the Gulf resort of Biloxi and also visited their son, Tommy, who is serving with the air force at nearby Keesler Field.

Mrs. Charles Groth whose death in New York Friday was reported in Tuesday's Freeman, had visited Shokan upon many occasions in the past and had a large circle of acquaintances in Ulster county. Mrs. Groth, whose husband died eight years ago, resided with her son, Lewis, in Washington Heights. The former Inez Newbery was brought up near Atwood and lived for a time in the West Hurley sector. She was related to the Ennist, Winchell, Bush and other old local families. One of Mrs. Groth's four sisters, Hazel Houlihan, resided at Ashokan in waterworks days.

Howard Brooks has returned to Chelsea, Mass., after spending two weeks at the home of his mother, Mrs. Earl Elmendorf. Howard, who spent several of his boyhood years in Shokan, hopes to come here to live next spring.

Among the out of town people in Shokan recently were Eliner Sleight, New York; Robert and Ann Krieger, Maywood, N. J.; Mary Guinan, Kingsbridge avenue; Elsen Kerler, Brooklyn; Howard Ives, town Esopus, Patrick Fogarty of the Bronx.

Spending the hoilday at the Gebelein apartments were Mr. and Mrs. John Farley of Schenectady. Mrs. Farley is a sister of Mrs. William Kelly. Also at Gebelein's were Mr. and Mrs. Michael Anthony and sons, Timothy and Pietro, of the Bronx.

The Casablancas, who have a house in St. Petersburg Fla., expect to spend much of the time this fall and winter at their Shokan place.

Think It Through

By EDWARD F. HUTTON

Every strike is a small depression. A lot of strikes make a big depression.

Let's "look at the record" as Al Smith used to say.

From 1927 to 1937 — ten years — there were 12,257 strikes.

Mr. Hutton

Now keep your hats on and don't get jumpy.

From 1937 to 1952, inclusive, — 16 years — there were about 63,000 strikes. More since the Wagner Act than ever before.

The labor boys now are yelling "gloom and doom." Listen, chums, what about 63,000 strikes? Didn't they create "gloom and doom" for the boys in and out of the unions?

The question is: Do we want the Government to assist in reducing strikes, or, unions to control both Government and industry?

Take your choice, my hearties. It's not a laugh-off.

Only production creates wealth. Strikes stop production. Strikes take pay checks from workers; mean less goods on the market and higher prices caused by lost production. Strikes in one industry cause layoffs in others.

Are we to go the way France has gone?

That's a plain question.

Let's answer it.

The Mature Parent

Backing Child in First Brush With Misjudgment Is Vital

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

This summer, 11-year-old Dan had a job delivering his town's weekly newspaper. A Mr. Bannister is one of his customers.

One afternoon, he was turning his bike in at the Bannister driveway when he noticed a new hedge. He swerved in time to avoid it — but not in time to avoid crashing into the white post that supported the Bannisters' mailbox.

As he was scrambling to his feet, Mr. Bannister came charging down the driveway from his garage. Shaking his fist at Dan, he roared, "I saw you, you careless young cub, you! Can't you see where you're going? That post was only painted this spring! If you've scraped paint off my post . . ."

That evening Dan told his father that he didn't feel like delivering newspapers to Mr. Bannister any more. They had a little talk about what to do with this feeling.

The next morning, Dan drove with his father to Mr. Bannister's house. There, while his father waited in the car, Dan rang the bell.

"Good morning, Mr. Bannister," he said. "I came to tell you that you were wrong about me yesterday. I was not careless. I hit your mailbox post because I was trying to avoid running over your new hedge."

After he had rejoined his father, Dan told his father he felt better about delivering papers to Mr. Bannister.

Of course he did. He had rescued the truth about himself from someone who had tried to steal it from him. He could continue to approach Mr. Bannister because he had reclaimed his own identity as a responsible boy from someone who had tried to change it.

I cannot overemphasize the importance of supporting children in these first outside experiences with misjudgment.

Such support is, of course, training in the child's consciousness of his own good motives. Because he is a child and often clumsy, his good intention, like Dan's, will often have a bad result.

If his good intention is not clarified so that he realizes it himself, criticism can make him believe he had the wrong idea. He will defer to Mr. Bannister, and fail to credit his character with the good intention.

That is one of the ways to produce evasion of criticism.

For when we grow up, we cannot always seek out some Mr. Bannister and say, "Look, you misjudged me." We have to admit our mistakes.

If we don't possess awareness of our good character, separate and distinct from the bad results, we will resist criticism. We will deny our mistake to gain support for our good character.

Dog Heartaches

By FRANK TRIPP

No emotion can thrust a parent deeper into the dumps than compassion for his children; and when pity is roused by the loss of a child's dog it becomes a major household tragedy.

Cobby was a knowing, patient black and white cocker. She grew up with little Harriet and Mary, though Steve and Turk called her their dog.

She was a dog anyone would be glad to claim. She was kind and wise, knew her place, defended her friends, shunned dog brawls and sort of took charge of things the way you wanted.

Cobby was a lady. When she barked the whole neighborhood knew that it was for no senseless, nervous reason, and that it was wise to heed her. She was about the nicest company we ever had around.

SO, WHEN COBBY went to where all good dogs go there was gloom and adult sadness added to the pity that we felt for her little companions, our grandchildren.

Cobby always met the car when Bob came home at night, as did the children. This night she was unusually happy to see him.

Only the girls saw Cobby skid under the stopping car, in her eagerness to be first. They screamed, but too late. They saw the rear wheel pass over Cobby's body, a horror that will haunt them to their womanhood. Mercifully they didn't see Cobby die; she died that night at the veterinarian's.

"Cobby has gone to heaven," sobbed little Mary. "I'll see her when I get there, won't I Mommy?"

THIS WAS the girls' first encounter with the death of a friend, but the boys have had dog heartaches before. Ahead of Cobby was Flaps, another black and white cocker. He disappear one day in winter, on his way to meet the boys coming home from school, his nightly chore.

Weeks passed, the deep snow melted, and under it at the roadside, street workers uncovered poor Flaps, crushed by a car and tossed to the gutter by a snow plow.

IT'S A MISTAKE to become so attached to a dog; a type of sin to grow fondness approaching that which one feels for his children. Yet it is inescapable with such as Cobby and Flaps.

We all do it, get joy out of it, then suffer grief meant to be bestowed upon humans. There is something wrong with a person who doesn't reciprocate the affection that a good dog gives to his master.

WE STILL GRIEVE for a loving little Boston bull, at our house. We gave her to our youngest on her ninth birthday and Nancy named the tiny rescal Mitzi. She was a smart little clown.

Mitzi lived with us 12 years, a ripe old age for a dog. Fanny and I became fools over her, more so even than Nancy.

Then, almost blind, hardly able to toddle, we decided one day that Mitzi must be put away. I'll swear that she heard us and understood.

The morning that we were to dispatch her she bade me goodbye as truly and affectionately as could a person. Fanny was to take her away before noon. I was never to see her again. I didn't but little Mitzi made it easier to bear.

Before I reached the office she had struggled to the lily bed, cuddled herself amid the flowers, and died. That was 15 years ago.

But we still miss Mitzi.

THOSE GOSSIPERS!

A letter this morning explains: "The other day I overheard a girl in the office telling another girl something about a friend of mine who also works in the same office. What she was telling her was untrue and, furthermore, can be very damaging to her reputation. If I know girls, it won't be long before this other girl tells someone else and before long it will be common gossip throughout the office. Don't you think I should tell my friend what I heard so that she may do something about this before it goes any further? What is the best way to handle a situation of this kind?"

At the time you overheard the conversation was the time to interrupt the girl who made the statement and say that she was making a mistake and what she said was not true. All you can do now is deny that it is true when the conversation gets to you personally.

Acknowledging Telegrams

Dear Mrs. Post: I was married several months ago and received many wedding presents, for all of which I wrote thank you notes personally. We also received quite a number of telegrams which I did not acknowledge as I did not think it necessary. Now I am told that these messages should have been ackonwledged too. I feel terribly about this and hope I haven't hurt anyone's feelings. Please ease my conscience by either telling me there was no need to write to those who sent telegrams, or tell me what I possibly can do now.

Answer: You thank them as you see them or include it in a letter when you are writing about something else; but a special note is neither necessary nor expected.

Applesauce

Dear Mrs. Post: When applesauce is served with the main course, should a teaspoon be provided? We serve it in little glass cups when we have pork and ham.

Answer: A teaspoon is really not correct. It should be eaten with your fork—whether you eat it directly from the cups or plate.

Woodstock Artist Captures Ulster County Seniors Golf Title

Harry Hohnhorst Cards 85 Gross on Home Links Vogt Shoots Low 75

A 70-year-old Woodstock artist is the new Ulster county Senior golf champion.

Harry Hohnhorst, a 13-handicap player who captured the Woodstock CC title way back in 1933, spread-eagled the Class A group with a gross 85 in the second annual tournament Sunday at Woodstock.

Hohnhorst's score was nine strokes lower than runnerup, Harold F. King of Twaalfskill. Of the 44 entries in the five divisions of the tournament, nine competed in the greybeard group of 70 years and up.

DEFENDING CHAMPION, Frank W. Thompson, of Wiltwyck, got off to a bad start and never recovered.

Roy Vogt of Wiltwyck carded low gross for the tournament with a 75 in Class E (50-54) and got his name on the Jay Rifenbary memorial plaque. Hohnhorst's name will be inscribed on the DeLisio Memorial plaque.

Hohnhorst was out in 44 and back in 41. Bruff Olin of Woodstock and Harold F. King of Twaalfskill carded net 70s in Class A.

WOODSTOCK GOLFERS won four of the five divisional titles. Besides Hohnhorst, the winners were Charles E. Burnett, Frank X. McCahill, Walter Seaton.

The other divisional champions are:

Class B (65-69)

Low Gross—Charles B. Burnett, Woodstock, 90.

Low Net—Ed Tongue, Wiltwyck, 77.

Class C (60-64)

Low Gross—Frank X. McCahill, Woodstock, 86.

Low Net—Ralph E. Gardner, Wiltwyck, 74.

Class D (55-59)

Low Gross—Walter Seaton, Woodstock, 80.

Low Net—Phil Coletti, Woodstock, 71.

Class E (50-54)

Low Gross—Roy Vogt, Wiltwyck, 75.

Low Net — August Torres, Woodstock, 70.

VOGT, A FORMER Wiltwyck and city champion, carded nines of 38 and 37 for the Class E title. Maurice Davenport, a strong contender in this division, blew his chances with an outgoing 43. His incoming 35 was the best nine of the day.

Seaton had 39 and 41 in Class D, while McCahill posted 42-44-86 in Class C. Charles Burnett fired 47-43-90 in Class B.

Prizes were awarded at a luncheon served by Mrs. Wiggy DeLisio and her committee. Club president, Tony DeLisio, who was chairman of the tournament awarded the DeLisio memorial plaque to Harry Hohnhorst. Floyd W. Flint, last year's chairman, made a similar presentation to Roy Vogt for the Rifenbary plaque.

Destroyers and Legion In Shaughnessy Finals

Final Series Opens Wednesday

Finals of the City Softball League Shaughnessy playoff open Wednesday night at Dietz Stadium with Destroyer AC meeting the American Legion.

First game in the best-of-five series is scheduled to start at 7:30 p. m. under the stadium arclights.

Destroyers choked off a desperate seventh inning threat by Lincoln Park Inn to win 4 to 2 Sunday behind the seven-hit pitching of Frank Boyce.

AMERICAN LEGION had to travel nine innings to turn back Perry's Rest and Carlo Perry, 7 to 5, in the other league final.

Destroyers picked up three runs off Walt Bigler in the first inning and made them stand up. The fourth crossed in the third. Boyce, who allowed only seven hits, was nicked for two runs in the second, and had to beat off a one-out, 3-on situation in the bottom of the seventh.

Bud Leininger powered a homer for the Presidents. Ed Dasher had a double and triple. Bob Martin stroked three singles and Billy Anderson and Al Van Derzee each hit a pair for the Destroyers.

ALERT FIELDING by the Legion held Perry's at bay in the seventh and eighth innings of their free-hitting slugfest.

The Legion collected 16 hits off Carlo Perry, including three each by Form Coughlin and Rich Sherer. Herb Hotaling slammed four singles and John Crespino had a trio for Perry's against Charlie Bock. Jack Gilligan, Tony Musto and Bob Slover hit triples.

Odds on Marciano Soar To 4-1 for Title Clash

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—Plenty of backing for heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano has sent the odds soaring to 4-1 and better for his return title bout with Ezzard Charles at Yankee Stadium Wednesday night.

For a long time the odds favoring Marciano held at 18-5. With the approach of the return bout the support for the 30-year-old, all-conquering champion has increased considerably. Most of the wagering is on whether the 33-year-old Charles will be able to go the full 15 rounds as he did on June 17th. Rocky is a 12-5 choice to stop Ezzy this time.

The broadshouldered, lean hipped Charles will be the first ex-champion to get three cracks at regaining the heavyweight crown. Jim Corbett got two tries and failed both times. Charles, too, lost twice—to Jersey Joe Walcott and Marciano.

CHARLES, HOWEVER, is intent on making ring history in a more sensational fashion by becoming the first former ruler ever to grab back the heavyweight throne.

Charles, who has stopped 53 of 98 opponents, may try for a knockout himself. And the champ, who has won 40 of his 46 fights by kayos, wants badly to knock his man out this time.

A NEW WORLD bantamweight king will be crowned in far off Bangkok on Sunday when France's Robert Cohen and Thailand's Chamrern Songkitrat battle for the throne vacated by Australia's Jimmy Carruthers. The two top 118-pound contenders will meet in a 15-rounder which has been sanctioned as a championship contest by the World Boxing Committee.

THE BIG WEEK in boxing gets off to a lively start tonight at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway Arena where undefeated Frankie Ryff (13-0) of New York takes on Ralph Dupas, 19-year-old contender from New Orleans, in an eight-rounder. Although he's the No. 3 lightweight contender, has fought tens elsewhere and has a 49-5-4 record, Dupas can only fight eight rounds in New York until he's 20.

ABC will telecast the bout starting at 9 p. m., EST.

The other Monday night network TV fight (Dumont-TV, 9 p. m., EST) matches middleweights Bobby Jones of Oakland, Calif., and Jimmy Mantinez, of Glendale, Ariz., in a 10-rounder.

MIDDLEWEIGHTS ALSO are featured on the Friday night radio-TV, NBC, 9 p. m., EST) show which will come out of Washington's New Capitol Arena this week. Two hard hitters, Walter Cartier of New York and Willie Troy of Washington, are matched for 10 rounds or less and the emphasis in this case is on the less. It should be exciting while it lasts.

Alston Admits Things Looking Better for Bums

Brooklyn, Sept. 13 (AP) — Manager Walt Alston of the Brooklyn Dodgers took one look at the remaining schedule today and couldn't help smiling:

"I haven't made any predictions all year and this isn't the time to start."

But he allowed that things were looking up.

Trailing the New York Giants by three games and a game and a half ahead of the Milwaukee Braves, the schedule favors the Brooks all the way. Of their 11 remaining games, nine are at home. Five of the 11 are with the last-place Pittsburgh Pirates, three with the Cincinnati Redlegs and three with the Giants.

Leo Durocher's men, on the other hand, have 13 games left—three with Brooklyn, a half-dozen with Philadelphia, three with Milwaukee and one with St. Louis. Seven are at home, six away.

Brooklyn has won five straight, including yesterday's 4-2 and 4-3 triumphs over the Chicago Cubs to gain three games on the Giants in less than a week.

Forst Packing Sweeps Six Straight in HVBL

Forst Packing, formerly Schryver Lumber, and Rapp's Express got off to auspicious starts in the Hudson Valley Bowling League over the weekend.

The Packers reeled off six straight wins with a sweep at home against Newburgh Johnsons and a 3-0 triumph over Fogg-Nash at Poughkeepsie.

Rapp's swept Midletown Muscos and scored a 2-1 win over Newburgh Johnsons.

JONES DAIRY, runnerup in last year's race, turned back Dutchess Rec, 2-1, at the Bowlodrome but dropped three straight to Mi-Ro Restaurant at Beacon for an unimpressive 2-4 record for the weekend.

Elston's Sport Shop launched its season on a note of triumph with a 3-0 verdict over Mi-Ro Restaurant and a two-game loss to Middletown Gay Lounge on the road.

Randy Kelder gave Forst's a 616 series (223-204-189) against Fogg-Nash, while Larry Petersen fired 178-222-202-602 in the sweep against Newburgh.

HOTTEST SHOOTER of the weekend was Ken Joseph, Rapp anchor, who slammed 656, with 189, 225, 242 against Middletown Muscos and 543 in the Newburgh match.

Johnny Feraro unloaded 655 (220-236-199) against Dutchess Rec, the Poughkeepsie Cab champions of 1953-54, but slumped to a dismal 478 at Beacon. Phil Versace hit 566 at the Bowlodrome.

Bostwick Paces Polo Champions

Chicago, Sept. 13 (AP)—A team made up of a combination of players from the midwest and the east, led by the veteran Pete Bostwick, is the new National Open polo champion.

Bostwick was never better than yesterday when he paced his C. C. C. Meadowbrook quartet with five goals for a 10-5 victory over Brandywine and the title.

For the first time in the 50-year history of the tournament, it was held in the midwest at the Oak Brook Polo Club in suburban Hinsdale.

Brandywine, of Kennett Square, Pa., used a tight defense in an effort to stop Bostwick, but the seven-goal star broke through the cordon at will.

Record Throng 86,563 See Tribe End Yankees' 5-Year Reign

Wynn, Lemon Check Old Champs, 4-1, 3-2 At Cleveland Stadium

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

It would be ridiculous to accuse the five-time world champion New York Yankees of "choking up."

But it must be gratifying to the long suffering Cleveland fans today to look back over the past few days. While the proud Yankees were losing seven of their last 10 clutch games, the Indians won eight out of 10 to pick up five games.

If ever there had been any doubts about Cleveland's intestinal fortitude, the American League leaders dispelled them yesterday with a glorious double triumph over New York that all but ended the long Yankee dynasty.

The 4-1 and 3-2 victories before 86,563 spectators, the largest crowd ever to watch a baseball game, stretched Cleveland's first place margin over the Yankees to 8½ lengths. With only 10 games left, the Indians can clinch their first flag since 1948 by merely winning three even if the Yankees sweep their remaining 11 games.

ALL WAS NOT ROSY for the Cleveland's springtime sparring partners, the New York Giants, however. Continuing their recent lack-lustre play, the Giants were beaten 4-3 by St. Louis and had their National League lead sliced to three games when the rebounding Brooklyn Dodgers came through with a 4-2 and 4-3 doubleheader sweep over the Chicago Cubs.

Milwaukee's Braves, still in the running despite two recent losses to the Dodgers, drew up to within 4½ games of the top by earning a split with the Phillies in Philadelphia.

Lew Burdette outpitched Robin Roberts for a 2-1 Braves' victory after the Phillies had snapped Warren Spahn's 11-game victory string 5-2. Cincinnati's Redlegs climbed into fourth place, drubbing the Pittsburgh Pirates twice 11-5 and 13-2 as Ted Kluszewski drove in nine runs and smashed homers Nos. 47 and 48.

THE CHICAGO WHITE SOX, paced by Nellie Fox and Minnie Minoso, vanquished the Boston Red Sox twice 5-3 and 7-5 to reach and pass the 90 victory mark for the first time since 1920. Fox produced three hits, including a two-run double, and stole three bases to help Bob Keegan post his 16th triumph in the opener. Minoso drove in four runs in the nightcap with a home run and double.

Detroit trounced Washington twice 5-0 and 8-3 to sweep past Boston into fourth place. Steve Gromek registered his 17th victory with a six-hit shuotout and sore-armed Ted Gray won his first game since May 12.

The battle for last place in the American League resulted in a stalemate as Baltimore and Philadelphia divided a pair and continued their eighth place tie. The Orioles won the opener 4-3 and the Athletics took the second 5-4.

The Indians' double win gave them a season split of 11-11 against the Yankees. Al Rosen's two-run double in the seventh off Allie Reynolds broke up a 1-1 deadlock in the opener as Bob Lemon went on to register his 22nd victory.

EARLY WYNN STRUCK OUT 12 Yankees including Enos Slaughter, Mickey Mantle and Yogi Berra in the ninth as he outpitched Tommy Byrne for his 21st triumph in the second game. Wally Westlake drove in two of the Indians' three runs in the fifth with a double.

Stan Musial batted in three runs with a single and his 35th homer against the Giants, while Harvey Haddix gained his 17th victory with help in the ninth from Alpha Brazle and Brooks Lawrence.

Carl Furillo drove in the winning runs in both Brooklyn victories. He doubled in two runs in the opener and broke up the second game with a bases-loaded, two-out single off Warren Hacker in the 14th inning.

Jack Dittmer's double off Roberts in the fifth produced the winning Brave run in the second game after Granny Hamner's double had broken up a 2-2 tie in the opener to give Murry Dickson his 10th triumph.

'My Finest Day'-Lopez; 'No Interviews'-Stengel

Cleveland, Sept. 13 (AP)—In the Cleveland Indians' dressing room Manager Al Lopez called yesterday "My finest day in baseball,". and he's been in it 30 years.

Around the curve of Municipal Stadium, Casey Stengel locked the clubhouse door of the New York Yankees whose five-year reign as American League champs is near an end. No interviews.

Major league baseball's biggest crowd of fans—the 86,563 who saw the Tribe humble the Yanks 4-1 and 3-2 in the stadium sunshine and shadow—probably would agree today that the reactions of Senor Lopez and old Case were about right.

MATHEMATICALLY, the Yanks can't be eliminated before Wednesday afternoon, and it's more likely to happen Friday or Saturday. But only a miracle could prevent it—a miracle such as the Indians losing eight of their remaining 10 games, while the Yanks win all 11 they have left.

Lopez, pilot of three Indian runners-up to the world champion Yankees, had more to say about his "finest day."

"Guess I'll have to admit now that things are looking pretty good," he understated with a chuckle.

"You'll have to go a long way to see two better ball games—and what a crowd."

The great throng of 84,587 paid and almost 2,000 on spectator passes totaled 275 more than the 86,288 all-paid gate at the Oct. 10, 1948 World Series game here.

IT EXCEEDED ALSO the regular major season record of 82,781 paid admissions. That mark, too, was set in the Indians' last pennant year of 1948—in a doubleheader with Philadelphia June 20.

The huge crowd—not as noisy as some half the size—watched a display of top notch pitching by Cleveland's Bob Lemon and Early Wynn. Together, Lemon and Wynn gave the once-mighty Bombers only nine hits in 18 innings, including two bunts and an infield scratch.

Lemon crushed the Yanks' hopes of gaining on the Tribe by winning the opener 4-1 on a six-hitter that increased his major league leading victory total to 22 against six losses.

Wynn poured it on the downcast New Yorkers with the 3-2 three-hitter in the second game and struck out 12, whiffing the side in order in the ninth. Wynn now has won 21 and lost 11.

Each of the 34-year-old Tribe righthanders has contributed four victories to help the Indians gain an even break of 11 games to 11 with the Yankees for the second straight season.

Vegetation Is Gone

Because goats have eaten most of the vegetation, observers say that Mas a Tierra, island off Chile, reputedly the original Robinson Crusoe site, is being washed into the sea.

UNCLE SAM—DAIRYMAN

BY HARRY C. FRANCE

Uncle Sam's role as a promoter of prosperity is eloquently proclaimed in the field of agriculture. In this article I want to stress his activities as a dairyman.

A late report of his indispensable agency, the Commodity Credit Corporation, shows that he owns over 711,000 tons of butter, cheese and dried milk. These 1,422,000,000 pounds of farm products cost over $521,000,000 and when they are eventually sold substantial losses (which the tax-payers will take) will be realized.

The state of the national economy necessitates such governmental purchasing. If dairy farmers were to lose their purchasing power, they would not have the wherewithal to buy the machinery and equipment to pay the labor costs and to meet the ordinary expenses incident to running a farm.

And if this were to happen, how could they buy the Chevrolets, Plymouths and Fords required in their work? Also, very soon the farm implement companies would be out of orders and unemployment would set in. Such a chain of bad economic events would reach the steel companies and the railroads with the result that a major recession might set in.

So, price supports such as those extended by the Commodity Credit Corporation are today a necessary adjunct to Uncle Sam's prosperity. These supports do keep living costs high but they are an integral part of our national well-being.

Furthermore, other farmers are not being neglected. Uncle Sam owns over $670,000,000 of corn—410,000,000 bushels. His wheat supplies total more than 875,000,000 bushels valued at over $2,160,000,000. Under Uncle Sam's sheltering arm are millions of farmers and hundreds of corporations. Without his price supports, economic America would be in a bad way.

This overall picture carries many implications—one in particular. Every investor in the world is caught up in a maze of economic circumstances and realities. If he is to invest wisely, he will intelligently relate himself to the forces surrounding him. I shall illustrate.

Out of Chicago the other day I met in a big DC-7 (15,000 feet in the air) a prosperous midwest farmer, 78 years old. He told me two significant things: (1) that wheat was high in the face of huge surpluses because of government price supports and (2) that land was high because wheat was also.

He further told me his lands are worth at least $400,000 and while he would like to sell some acreage at high prices, he wouldn't know what to do with the money. One important detail he neglected to mention: If he lives to be 90, in twelve years somebody will have to come forward and pay a big tax bill. And his liquid assets are totally inadequate to meet this bill.

He thinks (as I do) that Uncle Sam must keep agriculture prosperous. So, before saying goodbye at a Kansas airport, I said to him: "You have been buying farm machinery, farm tractors and cars and trucks for years and years from two corporations—both leaders in their fields. My advice to you is that you sell from 25 to 50 per cent of your high priced land and invest the money in the common stocks of these two companies. Within 25 years your heirs will be thankful that you carried this plan out while there was ample time to do so!"

Any reader of these lines possessing an abnormal amount of non-liquid assets and facing the time when the inevitable tax collector calls, should re-arrange his affairs while he still has time and opportunity.

(Q) "When can the average investor afford to start to speculate?"

(A) Speculation is a very broad term. It comes in hundreds of varieties. Speculation for pure capital gains should be engaged in only by the average investor when (1) he has a comfortable supply of dollars and dollar values and (2) he has a cash surplus which, if lost or badly impaired, will not cripple him economically.

Harry C. France will answer one letter each week through this column. If you have any investment questions, write in care of this newspaper.

Proveable Fish Story

Mason City, Iowa (AP)—The "big one" got away from H. W. Swanson of Mason City but he has a receipt to prove just how big it was. Swanson had a good strike while fishing in Clear Lake but the fish broke away. On his line, remained a small metal jaw tag. It had been placed on a spawning walleye in April, 1953 by Iowa State College biologists, who say the fish is now a little over 20 inches long and weighs about three pounds.

AS INDIANS WENT AHEAD—Larry Doby, Cleveland Indians centerfielder, slides safely into third as Yankee third sacker Andy Carey tries for tag during fourth inning of twin bill opened in Cleveland (Sept. 12). Umpire John Flaherty watches after Doby advanced on Al Rosen's single to Enos Slaughter who threw to Carey. Indians won both games before largest crowd ever to watch a major league baseball game—86,563 with 84,587 paid. Wins put Tribe 8½ games in American League lead with only 10 more games to play in '54 season. (AP Wirephoto)

IF YOU'RE RIGHT-HANDED, IT'S EASY TO MAKE SHOTS WITH THE LEFT FOOT FORWARD, BUT SOMETIMES YOU ARE CAUGHT WITH YOUR RIGHT FOOT FORWARD Ⓐ AS A BIRD FLUSHES. IF IT GOES TO THE RIGHT, YOU CAN'T PIVOT IN THAT DIRECTION WITHOUT TWISTING INTO A CRAMP BEFORE YOU GET STARTED Ⓑ. SO, IT'S WISE TO PRACTICE BRINGING THE RIGHT FOOT BACK BEHIND YOUR LEFT FOOT Ⓒ AS YOU SWING UP YOUR GUN. THEN YOU CAN PIVOT TO THE RIGHT EASILY TO BAG SUCH TARGETS.

'Kiss-Not Hats'

Women grape pickers in many French vineyards still wear headgear of the type called "kiss-not-hats" by soldiers in the 100 Years' War because the sharp brims made it impossible to steal a kiss.

Indictment Sought

Lawrence, Mass., Sept. 13 (AP)—Dist. Atty. Hugh A. Cregg today sought a first degree murder indictment against Mrs. Melvin W. Clark Jr., 28, of Amesbury, in the Palm Sunday slaying of her husband. Cregg began the presentation of evidence to an Essex county grand jury with a statement he will call about 50 witnesses. He said among the witnesses will be the parents of the victim, whose wire-trussed body was found in a marsh June 2. The body had two bullet wounds in the head and several stab wounds in the chest. Mrs. Clark was arrested on a murder charge on June 26 after, Cregg said, she signed a three-page confession.

PRINCIPALS AT SENATE HOUSE EVENING—More than 100 persons braved threats of Hurricane Edna Friday night to attend an informal talk on Early American Silver given by Mr. and Mrs. Meyrick Reynolds Rogers (left and center) at St. James Church hall, Fair and Pearl strets. Rogers, who is curator of American Decorative Arts, Art Institute of Chicago, spoke informatively of the importance of silver on the Colonial scene and of the methods employed by craftsmen. Mrs. Rogers explained illustrations shown on a screen following her husband's talk. It was the same talk given in January by the Rogers before the Williamsburg Forum. Robert G. Wheeler, right, director of the Albany Institute of History and Art, was the first speaker on the program and spoke relative to the importance of early silver craftsmanship in the Hudson valley. The lecture was third in a series planned for the more than 250 members of Associated Members of the Senate House Association, of which Mrs. Emily Crane Chadbourne of Stone Ridge, a director of the Art Institute of Chicago, is president. Wagner, in Poll

Postmaster General James A. Farley with 14.6 per cent in the state poll and 11 per cent in New York city.

In giving the poll results, Balch, who is among top party leaders backing Harriman, stated:

"It was the result of this poll, coupled with long consultations with party and civic leaders throughout the state, detailed analysis of other polls taken on local levels . . . (That) convinced us that Averell Harriman's administrative ability and experience in government at all levels qualifies him for the most important post in our state government."

Despite strong support given to Harriman, former mutual security administrator, Roosevelt on Saturday night repeated his intentions to stay in the race. He stated there was "no truth whatsoever" to reports that he had told CIO supporters he would withdraw under pressure from party leaders in New York city.

Roosevelt had reportedly been offered the nomination for lieutenant governor as well as "warm backing" for future political ambitions if he would step aside this year.

In denying this report, Roosevelt said, "I expect that this kind of rumor will be used to twist the truth and it will not succeed."

Both Balch and Wagner have said there is no objection to Roosevelt continuing his campaign for the nomination. On Saturday Balch stated that the name of Roosevelt or "any other qualified Democrat" will be welcome on the floor of the party convention, to be held in New York Sept. 21 and 22.

Wagner, commenting on results of the Democratic poll, said yesterday he was pleased by the strong support given to him but he had no intention of entering the race or changing his mind about supporting Harriman.

Navy Guards Ships

Singapore, Sept. 13 (AP)—The British Navy is guarding British merchant ships passing through the Formosa Strait en route to Red China ports, a spokesman at British Far East naval headquarters said today. This area, he said, includes Amoy port where Nationalist planes attacking Communist troop concentrations and shipping last week strafed and bombed the British freighter Inchkilda. Guard duties are being carried out by British naval ships traveling between Hong Kong and Korean waters and by vessels based at Hong Kong, said the spokesman.

Pilgrimage Made

the Association, and its members and officers.

THE VISITORS then proceeded from the boat to Port Ewen, headed by the Port Ewen Drum Corps and a brass band of the I.L.A. The motorcade passed over the Rondout Creek bridge and to the shrine of Our Lady of the Hudson where the Benediction was given by the Rt. Rev. Joseph J. Comyns, CSsR, of Mt. S. Alphonsus. A very appropriate sermon was delivered by the Rev. Lawrence Everett, CSsR, of Mt. St. Alphonsus who gave a history of the shrine and its dedication several years ago.

Rt. Rev. Msgr. Martin J. Drury, pastor of St. Mary's Church and dean of Ulster and Sullivan counties, gave a very timey address.

The program was under the supervision of the Rev. Father Kerins, pastor of the Church of the Presentation of Port Ewen.

After the program of speeches was concluded refreshments were served by the committee from the Holy Name Society and the Women's Presentation Club of the parish.

The pilgrims left by boat at about 7 p. m. for New York.

Charge Is Made

Washington, Sept. 13 (AP)—A federal official has charged that Clyde L. Powell, ousted assistant commissioner of the Federal Housing Administration, accepted more than $100,000 from apartment builders who dealt with FHA. William F. McKenna, special deputy housing administrator who probed a reported multimillion dollar federal housing scandal, made the accusation yesterday in his final report to Administrator Cole. McKenna called Powell "the czar of the nation's postwar rental housing program. Powell, who was fired last April, after reading the report told a newsman: "I deny that Mr. McKenna or anyone else has evidence that any builder or promoter ever paid me any money during my tenure of office with FHA, in connection with official business."

Automatic . . .

shall be maintained and extended continuously in keeping with the pupil's maturity."

Moffitt recommended the following procedures for use in schools of the state in order to maintain and improve standards in teaching the basic skills, such as reading, writing, spelling and arithmetic:

1. Standardized tests (such as the New York State Progress Tests) in reading and arithmetic should be administered to all elementary school pupils beginning with the early part of the fourth or fifth year, and certainly before the end of the sixth year. Pupils who do not achieve a satisfactory score representing competence to continue with the normal program should be further tested, individually studied and provided with appropriate instruction or, if necessary, be held for an additional time of instruction.

2. In view of the varying ages at which children enter school, and in view of the widely differing abilities, the retention of pupils for one year, to total a seven-year elementary school period exclusive of the kindergarten, might well be advisable for some pupils. When such retention is advisable, most school authorities prefer that it occur in the earlier grades.

3. If pupils are promoted conditionally (for example, from grade 6 to 7, or the first year of the secondary school), they should receive further instruction in the common branch subjects in addition to the instruction in English and mathematics which is normally provided. Recent studies have underscored the necessity for continued emphasis in the teaching of reading and arithmetic in the early secondary school grades. The secondary school must share with the elementary school the responsibility for developing, maintaining and improving the fundamental skills.

4. As soon as they can be developed we plan to furnish the schools with junior high school survey tests which should be administered to all pupils to determine achievement in basic areas of learning throughout the junior high school grades.

Moffitt pointed out that in recent years the elementary schools of the state, along with schools throughout the nation, had been beset with problems of insufficient buildings, overcrowded classes, double sessions, lack of adequate teaching facilities and a shortage of qualified teachers.

"Under no circumstances must we permit these temporary handicaps to lower the standards of attainment which we expect the schools to achieve in the common branches of learning—the fundamental subjects such as reading, writing, spelling and arithmetic—for these are the basic tools of learning which are essential for progress in all phases of instruction."

Threat Brings Arrest

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—The FBI has arrested a 37-year-old unemployed musician on charges that he threatened to kill J. Edward Lumbard, U. S. attorney for the Southern District of New York. The New York office of the FBI identified the man as Angelo Cubero Ortiz of Brooklyn and said he will be arraigned before a U. S. commissioner on charges of violating the extortion law. If convicted, he could get a five-year prison sentence or a $1,000 fine or both. The FBI announced the arrest yesterday and said Ortiz recently wrote a letter to Lumbard threatening to kill him "as soon as possible."

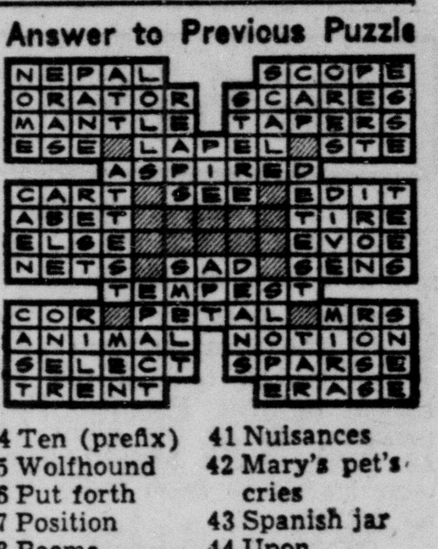
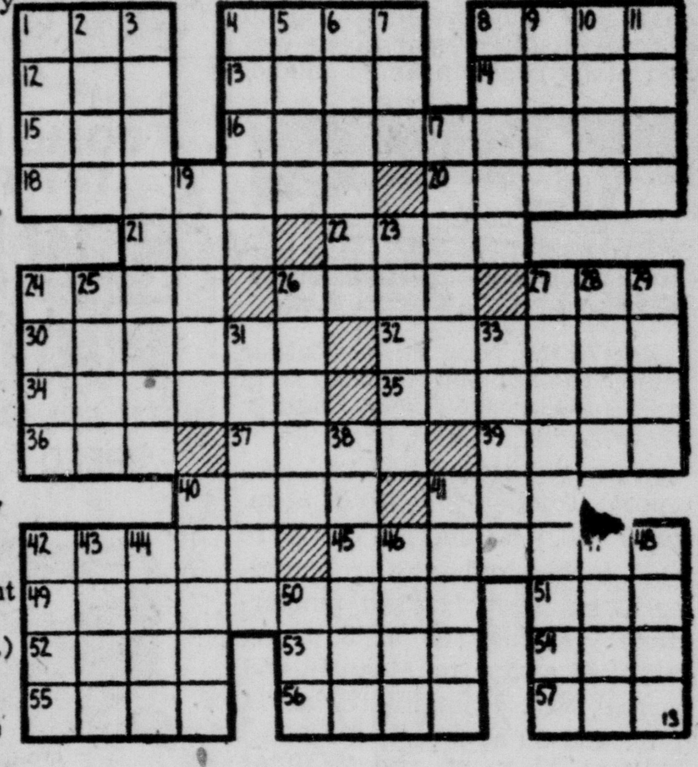
Answer to Previous Puzzle





'Local Option

York Herald Tribune reported Rep. Jacob K. Javits, Manhattan Republican, probably would run for the state post.

GOLDSTEIN YESTERDAY made public a letter to L. Judson Morhouse, Republican state chairman, in which he stated plans to return to private life. The attorney general said he had informed party leaders of his decision previously, but had withheld public announcement until Gov. Dewey had made his political intentions known.

The Herald Tribune said today that Republican leaders predicted Javits and Rep. Henry J. Latham, Queens Republican, both would be on the state ticket with Ives this fall.

The newspaper said Javits "is understood to be available" for the attorney general spot, while Latham "will be sought by many statewide leaders for state comptroller."

THE INCUMBENT state comptroller, J. Raymond McGovern, is considered the probable Republican candidate for lieutenant governor.

Ives' speech at Schenectady—at a county GOP clam bake—was his first address in the role of willing candidate for the Republican nomination for governor.

The senator, who announced Thursday that he would accept the gubernatorial nomination if offered, told the Schenectady audience that "the New Dealers, in their desperation for votes, will promise anything and everything to win the state this fall."

But, he continued, the GOP would stand on what he called the "magnificent record of the Dewey administration" and win the Nov. 2 election "overwhelmingly."

Perfect for Practice

Morristown, N. J. (AP)—If some would-be Paderewski next door is driving you mad practicing the piano, buy him a silent one. The no-noise piano is the invention of Benjamin Franklin Miessner, the holder of some 150 patents in the music-electronic field. Miessner believes his silent piano—no strings—can be mass-produced for about $250. It has 73 small spring steel reeds from which the music is picked up by earphones.
